Red China Gives Allies "Final Warning"

Baseball Gets 6 Million for 6-Year TV Series Rights

All-Star Games Included in Pact With Gillette; Radio Fee $1,370,000

CINCINNATI, Dec. 26 (AP).—Major league baseball today sold the television rights for its World Series and All-Star games for the next six years for six million dollars.

Signing of the contract with the Gillette Safety Razor Co., will give baseball a bulging $7,370,000 for the radio and television rights during the next six years. Gillette already had agreed to pay $1,370,000 for radio rights alone.

Announcement of the signing of the television agreement came from Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler who, less than a month ago, said he would serve out his present term even though he doesn't get a new contract as commissioner to begin in 1952.

Chandler made that statement after major league club owners had declined to vote renewal of his contract.

In 1950 the television rights for the World Series were sold for $800,000 and radio rights for $175,000. The radio-television rights for the All-Star game went for $184,000.

Aids Pension Fund

The commissioner said today the television money "will be applied in large part to the baseball players' annuity and insurance plan."

That is the money from which baseball is to pay pensions and annuities ranging from $50 to $100 a month to participating ball players after they reach the age of 50. The players themselves and the club owners also contribute to the fund.

At a meeting here in November the club owners voted to dump the entire TV-radio $975,000 from the World Series into the central fund from which premium payments on the pension plan are made. It now costs the central fund between $500,000 and $600,000 a year for its payments.

The money paid by the players goes direct to the insurance company which handles the plan.

Chandler's announcement today said it has not yet been determined which television hookup will be used under terms of the contract but "it is understood that it will include the Mutual television stations in New York, Chicago, and Boston."

Sponsors Since 1946

That Mutual figures prominently in the plans also was indicated by the fact the announcement of the signing of the agreement came from Joseph P. Spang, jr., presi-

Low of 15 to 20 Forecast for Area This Morning

Temperatures in Washington and suburbs will drop to between 15 and 20 degrees this morning, the Weather Bureau said.

The last time the thermometer fell to 15 degrees here was two years ago—December 26, 1948.

Forecasters looked for a cloudy, windy day with an afternoon high of about 26 degrees.

Some sleet and snow fell in the city early last night, but only traces were recorded by the Weather Bureau.

What actually fell, observers said, was a mixture of snow and sleet—"snow grains" is the technical term. Anyhow, it wasn't enough to affect city traffic.

Yesterday's high was 37 degrees at 12:50 p. m. The morning low was 27 degrees at 7:10 a. m.

Government, in 'Hush-Hush' Deal, Purchases Swank School, Estate, for Undisclosed Use

SOLD TO GOVERNMENT—Riding was a favorite sport at the former Warrenton Country School which yesterday was sold to the Federal Government reportedly for $170,000. Photo shows students riding through gateway of the fashionable girls' school.

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporters

The Government has purchased a famous 335-acre estate and an exclusive girls' school in the heart of the Warrenton, Va., hunt country, real estate officials diclosed last night.

The school, formerly the Warrenton Country School, reportedly was sold for $170,000. The showplace estate, known as "View Tree," is said to have brought $95,000.

A Warrenton attorney, who told The Washington Post he had been named to oversee the transaction, declined to state last night which Government department or agency was interested in the plushy real estate. He made no mention of plans for utilization of the land.

"I was sworn to secrecy on this. It is a hush-hush project. The sales contracts were signed today," he said.

The Army has a super-secret post at nearby Vint Hills Farms. The Pentagon has said that it is a "radio installation," but that all further information on Vint Hills is "classified." It also has been reported that a school is in operation there.

Both the new Government-purchased properties are Warrenton landmarks.

The school, on a 16½-acre tract south of town on Springs rd., has run since about 1912. The ten buildings accommodated about 200 girls. Its owner and former headmistress is Mrs. Leah M. Bouligny.

A year ago last June Mrs. Bouligny closed the school and leased it to another school operator, who renamed it the Greer School. The school did not open last September.

John L. C. West, Falls Church, Va., real estate man, said he negotiated the sale of the school to the Government. He said the school had been up for sale the past several weeks.

Yanks Trap No. Korean Regiment

Battle Near Border May Be the Start Of Long-Expected Onslaught by Enemy

By Robert Eunson

TOKYO (Wednesday), Dec. 27 (AP).—Units of enlarged U. S. Eighth Army, deployed on a 150-mile line all across Korea near the thirty-eighth parallel, today surrounded a North Korean regiment which slipped through the defenses.

South Korean troops encircled the Red infiltrators at an unspecified point south of Chorwon, a city 17 miles north of the parallel. It is 47 miles northeast of Seoul. Public information officers at General MacArthur's headquarters said a South Korean regiment "contained" the Reds.

The long expected Chinese Communist offensive across the thirty-eighth parallel toward Seoul still had not developed. Advices today from headquarters of the Eighth Army, now enlarged by five divisions of the Tenth Corps, mentioned only a continued buildup of Chinese north and northwest of Seoul.

These concentrations were in the area of Yonchon and Kuhwa, two villages north of the thirty-eighth and about 35 miles from Seoul.

There was no new report today on a battle which Republic of Korea (ROK) headquarters said erupted Tuesday between South Koreans and Chinese in the Korangpo area. Korangpo is 2 miles south of the parallel at a point 28 miles northwest of Seoul.

Republican headquarters also reported that Red patrols were sparring with the defenders all along the ROK-held section of the front lines.

Chinese and Korean Red forces are estimated to have 30 divisions of 300,000 or more men along or immediately to the rear of a 120-mile front running from west to east along the thirty-eighth parallel.

A giant new exodus of civilians began from Seoul Tuesday following a wave of Christmas Day rumors that the Chinese had begun their attack in force.

President Syngman Rhee told his people it would be better for them to leave now so they would not hamper military operations if the situation became worse.

It was exactly six months ago today that Seoul first fell to the North Korean Red invaders. It was liberated on September 27 by United Nations forces.

A North Korean blow aimed at Chunchon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, was turned back Tuesday

There are other indications that Communist forces may be as close as 21 miles from Seoul on the northwest hinge of the U.N. line. General MacArthur's headquarters previously mentioned an "enemy force" of undisclosed size operating around Sinsan. The Reds used mortars there on Saturday and sent out probing thrusts Sunday. There has been no subsequent reference to them or any clarification as to whether they were regulars or guerillas.

The United Nations commander, General MacArthur, earlier had firmly demonstrated that there was no intention of quitting Korea by some or all of the forces under his command. This was made

President Flies to Capital, Calls Blair House Night Talk

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

President Truman cut short his Christmas holiday in Missouri yesterday and by bedtime had brought himself up to date on world events, chiefly in Korea.

Within three hours of landing from the fastest flight he has ever made, the President was deep in a dinner discussion at Blair House with his chief military and civilian advisers.

He heard from Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, an appraisal of the military situation in Korea, including the menacing buildup of Chinese Communist troops north of the thirty-eighth parallel.

Those at the hurriedly arranged meeting were General Bradley, Secretaries Marshall, Acheson and Snyder, and Presidential Secretary Joseph Short, who told reporters later that he had been only a "listener."

General Bradley, armed with a war map and a pointer, appraised the military situation.

General Marshall reported to the President on defense preparations at home. The dinner table discussion also dealt with what should be done with the 17 billion dollars, eight billion of it for weapons and military supplies, which will become available soon from the second supplemental appropriation bill.

Short told reporters afterwards that he doubted "very much" whether the President would make "a new tax request" of Congress in January. He apparently meant that next month, at least, the President would not go beyond his current recommendations, including the big new increase in corporation taxes which is now

Leave Korea, Formosa, Foe's Radio Demands

Might of 'Volunteers' Declared Sufficient To Beat 'Invaders' If They Don't Depart

HONGKONG, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Communist China delivered its "final warning" today—United States troops will be driven from Korea and Formosa if they do not withdraw.

Here is the text of the broadcast by the Peiping radio, regarded as the voice of the Red China regime:

"Having taken part in the Korean people's army for the purpose of supporting them and driving back the American imperialist invaders, Chinese volunteer units gained big war results.

"And the brave actions of the Chinese volunteer units were supported as a patriotic action in the second world meeting for the protection of peace (the Warsaw Congress.)

"The Chinese will fulfill their right actions.

"We will drive them back by our might if the United States invaders will not withdraw from Korea and Formosa."

There are no American troops in Formosa. But small United States liaison groups were established after President Truman declared the neutrality of Formosa, formerly occupied by Japan, until its future could be settled in the Japanese peace treaty.

Mr. Truman requested Chiang Kai-shek to cease his raids on the Communist mainland and at the same time ordered the United States Seventh Fleet to patrol the Formosa strait to protect the island against threatened Communist invasion.

The Peiping radio broadcast was underlined by Gen. Chu Teh, commander of the Chinese Communist armies, who, in a speech at Peiping, repeated his government's terms for peaceful settlement of the Korean conflict, first spelled out at Lake Success:

1. Withdrawal of all United Nations forces from Korea; 2. withdrawal of all American forces from Formosa, and, 3. entry of Communist China into the United Nations.

U. S. Studies Free World Boycott of Red China

A proposal for a free world economic boycott of Communist China was reported under study by the United States last night as possible next step in dealing with the Korean crisis.

Following Peiping's rejection of the United Nations appeal for a cease-fire, responsible administration officials forecast that the United States will have definite "suggestions" probably next week for action by the U. N. General Assembly.

Indications from responsible authorities were that what is under study is (1) revival of the Soviet-vetoed proposal to brand Communist China as an aggressor and (2) an effort to get other nations to join the American trade embargo against the China mainland.

The United States course is being mapped out in the expectation that Red China's defiance will confront the General Assembly political Committee with an inescapable decision about January 2. Peiping turned down the cease-fire request on Friday. The three-member commission which appealed for a truce is scheduled to report its failure to the political committee by this weekend, possibly after another appeal.

Lie Urges Stand In Korea Despite China War Threat

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 26 (AP).—Secretary General Trygve Lie declared tonight that the United Nations must not give up in Korea even though this determined stand risks involvement in a war with Communist China.

If the U. N. is forced into war with China, he said, the blame will rest "upon those who have been pulling the strings and perhaps hoping for advantages through aggression."

Lie, on vacation, spoke over the Norwegian state radio network. He said he had not given up hope for a peaceful solution in Korea, but added that failure of the U. N. to stop the attack on South Korea would mean an end to U. N. hopes for achieving its aims in Korea or any other place.

New Code Puts Tight Controls On Bondsmen

District Criminal Bond Handlers Must Keep All Records Available

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The judges of District Court yesterday announced a series of sweeping changes designed to put the criminal bonding business here under tight control.

Taking effect July 1, 1951, the new code increases financial responsibility of the bail bondsmen, forces them to keep complete records available, and subjects them to fingerprinting.

The bonding business came under scrutinity of the House District subcommittee investigating crime conditions here early this year. Especially noted was the fact that bondsmen said they were unable to state who was paying the premius for gamblers.

Replaces 1933 Regulations

Court Clerk Harry Hull said that the changes had been under formulation during the past few years, and would supersede the present regulations in force since 1933.

The bondsmen, of whom there are seven active here now, will have to keep certified records of all persons paying premiums in criminal cases. The record must also show the names and docket numbers of the cases, amount of the bond, and whether bond is outstanding or discharged.

Records must be available for court inspection at any time, and the court auditor will examine them before each renewal of a bondsman's license, every two years.

During the congressional investigation here, a mysterious "Mr. XXX" was the only identification offered for a man who paid

Perjury Trial Begins

Ex-Wife Testifies Remington Told Her He Was a Communist

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—William W. Remington's ex-wife testified in Federal court here this afternoon that the former $10,000-a-year Government worker told her in 1938 that "he was a member of the Communist Party."

The sandy-haired 33-year-old Remington sat passively across the courtroom as she spoke. He is on trial for perjury—the Government charges he lied when he told a grand jury last summer that he never had been a Communist Party member.

The Remingtons have been divorced over a year and were separated some four years before their divorce. Mrs. Remington declared she now lives at 11 Tauxmont rd., Alexandria, Va., with their two children, supporting them on a part-time job plus a grandparent's bequest. She said she had received no money from Remington since last June, the month he was indicted.

First Day of Trial

Mrs. Remington's half-hour on the stand—she presumably will continue Wednesday—came at the end of the first day of what may be a month-long trial before District Court Judge Gregory F. Noonan. A slight woman, dressed in a tan tweed suit with a brown blouse, she spoke quietly in reply to questions from United States District Attorney Irving H. Saypol.

It was apparent from Saypol's opening statement to the jury of seven women and five men, chosen just before Christmas, that the Government will lay emphasis on Remington's years at Dartmouth College and the year he spent with the Tennessee Valley Authority at Knoxville before going to Washington.

Defense Attorney William C. Chanler of the law firm of former Secretary of War and State Henry L. Stimson, admitted that Remington "sewed his mental wild oats" in those days and emphasized they were in the era of the great depression. Chanler is assisted by Joseph L. Rauh, jr., who represented Remington before the Government Loyalty Review Board.

Mrs. Remington testified that she first met Remington at a 1938 Dartmouth "peace meeting" sponsored by the American Student Union and, she thought, the Young Communist League.

It was after a similar 1938 meeting at Harvard that he told her, she said, that he was a party member. She added that "he abjured me to secrecy on that."

Mrs. Remington said she "knew he was a radical" but that that was "the first time he told me he was a Communist." At the time, she said, she was "in the process" of joining the Young Communist League, the party's youth organization. She said, in reply to Saypol's question, that her former husband was a YCL member at Dartmouth and that she went to "one or two" YCL meetings with him.

She named his then roommate and another student as among

McCarran Act Foes Form Committee

Group of 32, Including Six Bishops, Would Repeal Anti-Red Law

By the United Press

Thirty-two prominent Americans, including six Protestant bishops, announced formation yesterday of a national committee aimed at repealing what they called the "shameful" McCarran anti-Communist law.

Among sponsors of the new organization are Dr. John Mackey, president of Princeton Theological Seminary; Frank C. Aydelotte of the Institute of Advanced Studies, Princeton University; author and Nobel Prize Winner Thomas Mann; and Pierre van Paasen, author and clergyman.

Committee Spokesmen John B. Thompson, dean of the University of Chicago's Rockefeller Memorial Chapel and Robert Morss Lovett, former acting Governor of the Virgin Islands, said the new group grew out of an appeal by more than 1900 leading Americans last fall for the defeat of the McCarran Act.

Since the law was passed over President Truman's veto, they said, "countless" letters have urged them to lead a movement for its repeal.

"The hysteria and intimidation

New House Decor Credits Only 11 Original States

A major row over whether there were 13—or only 11—original States in the Union, and whether the Flag should have eleven instead of thirteen stripes, probably will develop at the opening session of the next Congress.

This prospect arose yesterday as members of the incoming 82d Congress began looking in on the newly-decorated House chamber, which has been revamped in line with the views of a committee of college professors and historians.

At their suggestion only 11 silver stars have been affixed to the marble mantle behind the desk of the Speaker of the House. As one of the group of architects expressed it: "North Carolina and Rhode Island will have to demonstrate that they are entitled to be listed among the original States."

(Rhode Island never called a ratifying convention, and Nortn Carolina did not ratify until the Bill of Rights had been added.—Editor's Note).

Army Calls Up Many Reserve Officers, Wacs

7500 Lieutenants, And Captains, With 2155 Medics Needed

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday announeed another Reserve and National Guard call-up which will bring close to 10,000 officers to the colors.

Included are 7500 male captains and lieutenants, 100 Wacs, 890 medical, 850 dental and 415 Medical Service Corps officers.

The Second Army area, which includes the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and other States in the Middle Atlantic region, was given a quota of 1571 officers. That includes 316 male captains, 943 male lieutenants, 16 WACs, 34 chaplains, 113 medical officers, 80 dentists and 68 medical service officers.

The announcement said that the Army "expects that the bulk of these company-grade officers in the arms and services will enter active duty voluntarily as a patriotic service in a time of national emergency."

Mandatory calls will be issued, however, if there are not enough volunteers.

National Guard officers may volunteer, though they will not be called unvoluntarily as individuals.

Those called up will be given at least 30 days to close out their personal and business affairs.

Officers with four or more dependents—children, wife or parents—may request exemption because of hardship.

All of the doctors and dentists to be called are those classified "Priority I" under Public Law 779—those educated partly at Government expense.

If volunteers do not fill the Army's needs, the following groups will be called in the order listed:

ORC officers who were deferred from the draft because of ROTC status and who have had less than a year's prior service as officers. This includes those who will graduate in February from college.

ORC officers commissioned from the ROTC who did not execute an ROTC deferment agreement and who have had less than one year's active officer or enlisted service.

Members of the Volunteer Reserve.

Members of organized units of the ORC.

Up to States

Now Governmental Workers Can Come Under Security Act

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

(Fourth of a Series)

Municipal, State and some Federal employes who have watched the Federal Government extend Social Security coverage to most of the Nation's labor force will have their chance to join, starting next week.

Whether they actually go under the Social Security program will depend in considerable measure on whether the political heads of their governmental units desire such protection. Here is how it will work:

The new amendments to the Social Security law make it possible for a State to enter into an agreement with the Federal Government to cover one or more groups of State employes or employes of a political subdivision, such as a city or county.

1,400,000 Eligible

This may apply only to governmental workers not already covered by a retirement system. About 1,400,000 are considered eligible.

Many States will require passage of enabling legislation permitting such arrangements with the Federal Government before even starting negotiations.

The tax will be 3 percent—1½ percent withheld from employe pay and another 1½ percent paid by municipal, State or Federal Government, whichever is involved.

The Social Security Administration has had many inquiries from State and local officials, but thus far only a contract with Oklahoma for 30,500 workers has been completed. One stumbling block has been that cities may not deal directly, but must go through State officials.

Maryland Situation

In Maryland, David L. B. Fringer, Director of the State Employment Service, has been designated as the contact man between the State government and the Social Security Administration. He reported that thus far only the Baltimore Housing Authority has inquired about getting coverage for its employes.

In another amendment to the Social Security Act, employes of transit systems taken over by State or local governments after 1936 and before January 1 will be automatically taken into the program if they have no retirement system.

On the Federal side, most temporary and short-term service employes who are not under Civil

Scotland Yard Asks Public To Help Track Stone Thieves

LONDON, Dec. 26 (AP).—Scotland Yard appealed to the nation tonight for help in tracking down prowlers who stole the Stone of Scone, a priceless historical relic, from Westminister Abbey Christmas Day.

Baffled officials issued to newspapers some photographs of the 336-pound stone — on which 27 rulers have taken their coronation oaths. Usually the Yard keeps silent about a case until it is ready to be cracked.

The stone is regarded as a symbol of the union of the crowns of England and Scotland. The origin is lost in legend, but for centuries before the stone was brought to London in 1296, it was used in the coronation of Scottish kings. Scots refer to it as their "stone of destiny."

Operating on the theory the theft was the work of extreme Scottish nationalists, police stopped all cars traveling through the north of England and in Scotland.

The dragnet failed to turn up any sign of a small British Ford car that police said had been parked near the abbey about the time of the theft.

This and the damage caused to the coronation throne when the stone was detached from it and dragged through the abbey all but summed up the clews in the case.

There was speculation, however, that carving of the initials J.F.S. in the gilding along the front of the throne might be the work of the thieves.

The Dean of Westminster, Dr. Alan C. Don, declared:

"This disappearance of the stone is the most devastating thing which could have happened. It is impossible to put a value on it, for it is the most precious relic

2500 Indians in Korea, 20 Have Been Killed

Twenty American Indians have been killed in action in Korea out of more than 2500 Indians in military service, the Bureau of Indian Affairs reported yesterday.

The report was based on casualty lists for the last two months. The Bureau said Indians are serving almost everywhere American troops are stationed.

Commissioners About-Face

$50,000 Requested of Congress To Continue Day-Care Centers

Prompted by the White House, the District Commissioners have executed an about-face and asked Congress for $50,000 to continue for six months the child day-care centers that closed December 22.

District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler announced the commissioners' action yesterday to a group of anxious mothers who had called at the District Building with their children to ask that this be done.

Two weeks ago the commissioners had decided to let the program die, as a Congressional appropriation bill provided, on December 31. Reason for their abrupt change of heart was given by Commissioner Guy Mason.

He said a White House assistant had called Commissioner John Russell Young last week to say that President Truman was interested in seeing the day-care program continued. The commissioners decided that, if the President wanted it, they would request the funds, Mason said.

The decision was made at a special meeting Friday and a request sent to the Bureau of the Budget for approval that afternoon. It is unusual for District officials to release budget requests before they reach Congress. Fowler said it was the only way he could see of coping with a group of upset mothers.

District budget officials said they had asked the Budget Bureau to give the request "immediate" attention in hopes it can be acted on at the lame-duck session.

If the day-care item is left for the new Congress there may be a lapse of several months in the work of caring for about 300 children of working mothers.

GM to Build Jets In Kansas City Plant

DETROIT, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—General Motors Corporation annouced today it has completed arrangements with the Air Force to build F-84 Thunderjet fighters at its Kansas City (Kans.) assembly plant.

C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors, said the plant, which is leased by GM from the Government, will be used exclusively for manufacture of the Republic Aircraft Corporation plane.

Tooling will begin immediately, he said.

The Kansas City plant now is used to assemble Buicks, Oldsmobiles and Pontiacs. Its operations gradually will be transferred to other GM plants. Approximately 5000 persons now are employed there.

The number of planes to be built was not diclosed.

Coming to Reed

Pa. Soldier First to Lose Arms, Legs

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

PFC. ROBERT L. SMITH

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. Dec. 26 (A.P.).—A 20-year-old soldier from Pennsylvania is believed to be the first quadruple amputee to come home from the Korean wars.

The youngster was identified here today by Col. A. H. Corliss of the air base hospital as Pfc. Robert L. Smith, whose widowed mother, Mrs. Clara Smith, lives in Middleburg, Pa.

"His morale and condition are excellent," said Colonel Corliss, commanding officer of the hospital.

"His chances of rehabilitation are very good."

At about 8 p. m. PST. tonight, young Smith was to leave by military air transport on a non-stop flight to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D. C.

The first the boy's mother knew of his condition was based on a news story that he had arrived from Korea, probably the first soldier to return as a quadruple amputee.

This word came to her on Christmas eve, from the base hospital here, Pfc. Smith had telephoned his mother, but he didn't speak of his injuries.

Then, strangely, today there reached her from the Department of Defense a telegram which reported the boy had been "slightly wounded."

It wasn't the first telegram she had. On December 14 she got a message from Robert in Japan. He said "I am in a hospital. Anxiety unnecessary. Loving wishes for Christmas."

In Washington, however, the Army said Smith lost both hands above the wrists and both legs below the knees. Frostbites necessitated the amputations.

An Army spokesman gave this account:

Smith was slightly wounded in one arm during the fighting around the Changjin reservoir on November 27. Before he could be reached and given medical attention the bitter cold caused complications which required the removal of his limbs.

Travis Hospital authorities would not permit visitors or interviewers.

Mrs. Smith has another son in Korea who was wounded in the right arm. He is a 22-year-old corporal, Howard, who has returned to action with the same Seventh Division in which Robert served.

Only two Americans had quadruple amputations in World War II.

Mrs. Smith Planning A Visit to Her Son

MIDDLEBURG, Pa., Dec. 26 (A.P.). Mrs. Clara Smith started making plans tonight to visit her son, Pfc. Robert L. Smith, 20, who lost all four limbs as the result of frostbite suffered in the Korean war.

"I am trying to be brave but it isn't easy," the widowed mother said when informed of a Defense Department statement that her son had lost parts of all four limbs.

"Maybe this will make people realize what is going on," Mrs. Smith said. "There are so many who don't seem to care."

Air Force Holds Tests For Liaison Aircraft

By The Associated Press

The Air Force completed flight evaluation tests yesterday in its search for a new general-purpose liaison plane. The Canadian-built de Havilland Beaver was among the contestants.

The "Phase One" test was conducted by the air materiel command at Wright-Patterson Airbase, Dayton, Ohio. Only eight of the 31 companies, which accepted the invitation to take part, sent planes for the test.

The second phase is technical evaluation. It will cover such items as ease of manufacture, use of scarce materials and general efficiency of design.

The eight planes tested included the Ryan Navion 120 and the Cessna "195," both already in use by the Army and the Air Force; the de Havilland DH-C2 Beaver; Bellanca Senior Skyrocket; Aero Design Aero Commander; Atlas H-13; the Aqua Flight Aqua II. and the Helio Helioplane "Super 4."

The Air Force and Army already have bought six Beavers for special study. The Air Force has sent two to Alaska for cold-weather tests. The Army has not yet received the four bought for it.

Army Major Missing in Korea Action

Paul Winter, jr., of 818 N. Ivy st., Arlington, was notified by the Defense Department that his brother, Maj. Frederick W. Winter, 27, has been missing in action in the Korean fighting since December 1.

Major Winter arrived in Korea with the Ninth Infantry Regiment, Second Army Division, after serving about a year at Fort Lewis, Wash. He was previously stationed in Germany for three years.

A native of Hoboken, N. J., he attended schools in Lakewood, N. J. His brother said that the major was commissioned during World War II.

Windsors Offered $100,000 to Act In Radio Series

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (NYHT). The Duke and Duchess of Windsor have been offered $100,000 to appear on a husband-and-wife radio show, it was disclosed today by Jay Herbert, vice president in charge of sales for Charles King Productions, but the Duke's attorney said no negotiations were contemplated.

Herbert said his firm had originally offered the Windsors $50,000 but had doubled the sum in the hope of persuading what he termed "the greatest Romeo-and-Juliet team in the world today" to appear in a series of programs.

Henry Walter, attorney for the Duke, said no radio or television commitments had been made and that no negotiations were in progress. He said offers were constantly being received but none had been accepted.

Full Censoring Now in Effect For 8th Army

TOKYO, Dec. 26 (A.P.).—Full censorship is operating now at United States Eighth Army Headquarters in Korea.

Correspondents there were informed today that the five agencies accredited to Lieut.Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters would be limited to the use of two controlled telephones.

The five news gathering organizations accredited to Eighth Army Headquarters are the Associated Press, United Press, International News Service, Reuters and Pan Asia.

Regular Eighth Army briefings have been resumed on a daily basis. After staff officers have given correspondents a fill-in on the military situation they are allowed 30 minutes to write their dispatches and prepare them for censorship, Associated Press correspondent William Barnard reported.

Limited censorship continues in Tokyo, where correspondents covering General MacArthur's headquarters submit copy for clearance, but there is no control of communications to the United States.

Associated Press Correspondent William Waugh reported from advanced Eighth Army Headquarters that limitations placed on correspondents there compared to regulations put into operation elsewhere in Korea.

Waugh said use of telephones for outgoing calls was limited to between the hours of 9 p. m. and 8 a. m.

While Waugh was dictating this information a monitor, identifying himself as a corporal in the Eighth Army, broke into the conversation to correct a minor point.

$1,509,990 Granted For Polio Research

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—The National Foundation for Infantile paralysis announced today that universities and research centers in 16 states and Canada have been granted $1,509,990 in March of Dimes funds for infantile paralysis research and professional education.

The new grants bring to more than 25 million dollars the total spent in March of Dimes funds for research and education since 1938. During this same 12-year period, the national foundation has spent 102 million dollars in caring for polio victims.

crystal clear with the announced arrival of some 105,000 United States Tenth Corps troops in the Pusan-Pohang area in extreme southeast Korea from abandoned Hungnam on the northeast coast.

Rejoining Eighth Army

The United States Tenth Corps was being absorbed back into the United States Eighth Army, after operating separately since the Inchon landing September 15.

The reorganized Eighth Army—now three Corps strong and bolstered by ground forces from eight other United Nations countries—regrouped under its new commander Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, former deputy chief of staff of the United States Army.

Without fuss or special ceremony Ridgway took over the post left vacant by the accidental death of Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker on Saturday. Standing on a frigid windswept field without overcoat, Ridgway on assuming command told his men:

"You will have my utmost cooperation. I shall expect yours."

Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton, returning to Tokyo from the smoking Hungnam beachhead, reported that Ridgway would take over the Tenth Corps as well as the United States First and Ninth Corps. This placed all American forces in Korea under a unified command.

The Tenth Corps had been under the command of Maj. Gen. Edward M. Almond, formerly chief of staff of General MacArthur. Almond's operations in northeast Korea were separate and distinct from the Eighth Army in the west.

Swinton said that under the unification of command, Almond will be under Ridgway.

One source said the unification order came direct from Washington.

There had been some criticism over the divided command in northwest and northeast Korea, particularly when the Chinese Red army sent first one force, then the other into retreat.

MacArthur, however, in a review of the Chinese intervention in the Korean war, credited the U. S. Tenth Corps on the northeast flank with forcing the Chinese to divide their men, thus weakening the Red attack on the Eighth Army.

MacArthur again derided the Chinese claim that its troops in Korea were "volunteers." He point out that "massive deployment" of the Chinese Fourth Field Army was an important segment of the "entire Chinese Communist military strength."

In addition, the elements of the Red Third Field Army were deployed immediately to the rear.

The Air Force struck hard Tuesday at Red troop contrations and supply areas.

Superforts dropped 176 tons of bombs, Chorwon, big enemy base 50 miles northeast of Seoul, was the hardest hit Railway bridges and supply lines were drubbed by big bombers and fighters. Some 550 Red troops were reported killed or wounded in strafing attacks, including 65 Reds entrenched on the eastern section of the front.

Other towns hit in a dozen thrusts at staging centers included Sinanju in the northwest and Kumchon and Hwachon in central Korea north of the thirty-eighth parallel.

Family Improves After Christmas Food Poisoning

Three members of a Falls Church family were in satisfactory condition at Bethesda Naval Hospital yesterday after they contracted food poisoning from their Christmas dinner.

The victims were Marine Corps Capt. William G. Reid, 37; his their 3-year-old son Viet Sam. They were found unsconscious in their home at 827 Gordon ave. shortly before midnight Monday by neighbors. Reid is stationed at Quantico.

According to friends, Capt. Reid had telephoned a next-door-neighbor for help before collapsing. Reid told friends later he thought the poisoning may have been con-

en. The Reid baby, 2-month-old Pieter, was not ill.

Army Begins Production of Tank Killer

By the United Press

The Army announced yesterday it has started production of a new antitank weapon capable of knocking out any known tank—the 105-mm. jeep-mounted recoilless rifle.

Credited with giving the infantry unprecedented hitting power, it is the latest of many new weapons developed since the start of the Korean War. However, it is not yet in full production and is not yet listed as standard equipment.

The Army disclosed previously it had developed another tank-buster, known as the M-27 rifle. It is a single-shot, hand-loaded weapon with a range of nearly 5 miles and is capable of firing 10 shots a minute when handled by a trained crew.

Officials refused to say whether the antitank weapon has been used in Korea. But favorable reports have been received from the fighting front on the 3.5-inch bazooka, 75-mm. recoilless rifle and the M-46 Patton medium tank.

The most important weapons to receive their first combat test in Korea are jet fighter planes. Thus far, the American jets have proved superior to any Russian-built jet sent against them.

The Army said the 105-mm. recoilless rifle is not intended to be used as an artillery weapon, but rather by small infantry units.

It also said this rifle does not replace any other weapon, but gives infantrymen "hitting power" they never had before. Army Secretary Frank Pace, jr., said recently the rifle, together with the 3.5-inch bazooka, "will provide the front-line combat soldier with the ability to knock out the most potent enemy tank known today."

Banks Closed for Strike

DUBLIN, Ireland, Dec. 26 (A.P.). The Irish government tonight ordered all banks closed for the remainder of the week because of a strike of 5000 bank employes scheduled to begin Wednesday. The employes are asking a restoration of salary cuts that went into effect in 1941.

New Bethlehem Church

BETHLEHEM, Dec. 26 (A.P.).—A new Roman Catholic church was dedicated yesterday above the plain from which shepherds came to see the newborn Christ Child centuries ago. Built on the ruins of a former edifice, it was named "Our Lady of Fatima and St. Theresa."

Nepal Votes Changes Toward Popular Rule

NEW DELHI, India, December 26 (AP).—Eventual transfer of governmental powers in turbulent Nepal from the Prime Minister to the people is provided under proposals voted by the Parliament in Katmandu Christmas Eve, a Nepalese spokesman said here today.

The proposals, based upon suggestions from India for constitutional reform, were:

1. An interim government of a cabinet of nine ministers, including three "popular leaders," would be set up through formation Nepalese insurgent leaders presumably would be eligible if they disarmed.

2. This cabinet would rule until the election of a constituent assembly in 1953 to frame a new constitution. (A national census and preparation of voting rolls would take up the intervening two years.) Organization of poiltical parties by persons living in Nepal would be permitted.

There was no official comment on a third suggestion that exiled King Tribhuvana be restored to Nepal's throne in place of his 3-year-old grandson, Gyanendra. Tribhuvana and his family fled to New Delhi from Katmandu last month.

A Nepalese delegation arrived here by plane last night to advise Prime Minister Nehru of the parliamentary vote.

Aussies Declare Peace Prayer Call Truman 'Politics'

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Australian churchmen today criticized President Truman's call for world-wide peace prayers next Sunday as an "obviously political" attempt to "get God on America's side."

The Rev. Alan Walker, superintendent of the Waverly Methodist Mission, said "a far greater American president, Abraham Lincoln, in a time of crisis said he was more concerned about being on God's side than about getting God on his side."

Sydney's Anglican dean, the Very Rev. S. Barton Barbage, said in a nation-wide broadcast:

"Churchmen won't be altogether happy about Mr. Truman's call for prayer. It's too obviously political. I think some church leaders will be skeptical about the value of prayer organized for political motives and in an endeavor to command the Deity."

Browder, Field Ask Dismissal Of Indictments

Earl R. Browder, former American Communist boss, and Frederick Vanderbilt Field, New York millionaire, yesterday asked District Court to dismiss the indictments charging them with contempt of Congress.

They were indicted for refusing to answer questions of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating comunism in the Government.

Browder, who has no attorney, charged that the indictment is defective in that it fails to set out the authority by which the subcommittee was empowered to interrogate him.

Field said that in refusing to answer, he was exercising his Constitutional privilege against self-incrimination. Also, he said that since there were at least 10 persons on the grand jury who were Government employes, it was not impartial, and the indictment is therefore void.

8 Million DPs Held Explosive Factor in West Zone Politics

FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec. 26 (AP).—Western Germany's eight million German refugees from East Europe may soon become an international political problem.

American authorities say the refugees could hold the balance of power in the West German government if a single, national refugee party were formed.

No one leader now speaks for the refugees, who have been herded out of Poland, Prussia, East Germany and Czechoslovakia by the Communist governments of eastern Europe.

A strong position for the refugees in the German political arena "could have serious international political repercussions," says the U. S. high commission.

It gives these reasons:

The question of Germany's borders with Poland and Czechoslovakia is closely linked with the refugee problem. The pressure for border changes "would become exceedingly great" once the refugees won a strong political position.

"Furthermore," says the high commission, "by that time the refugee psychology would undoubtedly be quite ripe for the acceptance of militant radical leadership of the extreme right if not of the extreme left."

The refugees' big bid for political power will come in 1952, when the next national elections are held. Numbering 25 percent of the population, they already have grabbed considerable influence in Bavaria, Schleswig-Holstein and Wuerttemberg-Baden.

The high commission says that "at present almost 100 percent of these people are living on a standard far below that which they enjoyed in their former homes. About 750,000 of them are completely without work. Great numbers of them were upper-level members of business and the professions."

Malone Charges Trade 'Sell-Out'

Senator Malone charged yesterday that more than 100 State Department employes now are in England "selling out" American workers and investors by making tariff concessions to other nations.

The Nevada Republican said in a statement that an international trade conference now going on at Torquay, England, "will complete plans for wrecking the American economic system."

Representatives of more than 30 nations are attending the Torquay conference. Malone called on the Eighty-Second Congress, convening January 3, to let the 1934 Trade Agreement Act die next June 30.

He said the Administration has been using this law to make tariff concessions which he said have badly hurt many American industries.

Israel Granted Loan For Agricultural Use

A 35 million dollar loan has been granted Israel by the Export-Import Bank for agricultural development.

Embassy officials revealed yesterday that this money will be spent entirely in the United States, primarily for agricultural equipment and materials to build fertilizer plants.

In addition, Israel is planning to offer a public bond issue to the American public totaling 500 million dollars. Money from this bond issue, to be available soon, will supplement anticipated long-term development funds from such sources at the Export-Import Bank.

In January, 1949, the Export-Import Bank earmarked a 100-million-dollar credit for Israel, to be used as follows: 35 million dollars for agriculture; 20 million dollars for industry; 20 million dollars for transportation and communications; and 25 million dollars for housing and community facilities.

Poll Lists Gen. Eisenhower As Greatest American Alive

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been named the "greatest living American" by readers of the Saturday Review of Literature in a poll completed shortly before the general was made supreme Allied commander for europe.

The poll, which is to be an annual venture by the magazine, designated Winston Churchill as "the greatest living person in the world," Eleanor Roosevelt was declared both the "greatest living woman" in America and the world.

Bernard Baruch was second to Eisenhower in the poll on the greatest living American and Albert Schweitzer, noted doctor-philosopher-musician, long resident as a missionary in the interior of Africa, was second to Churchill in the world-wide vote.

Anna Rosenberg, recently confirmed as Assistant Secretary of Defense under General Marshall, himself a leading personality throughout the poll, was second to Mrs. Roosevelt in the American tabulations. Madame Pandit, India's Ambassador to the United States, was second to Mrs. Roosevelt in the world-wide selections.

Details of the voting, plus analysis of reader comments, will be published in the January 6 issue of the Saturday Review.

Commando Chief

Nazi Reveals Raid Planned On New York

OTTO SKORZENY

. . . reveals plan to bomb N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler was determined to bomb New York during World War II, because it would "influence the course of the war decisively," it was revealed today.

The blow at America's largest city was to have been delivered by V-1 flying bombs launched from the decks of submarines, it was disclosed in the memoirs of Col. Otto Skorzeny, head of the Nazi commandos. His book, "Skorzeny's Secret Missions," has just been published by E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc.

Skorzeny relates a conversation with Himmler in which the Gestapo chief declared: "New York must be bombed by our V-1s in the very near future . . . "Those people will never resist the nervous ordeal inflicted by flying bombs. Besides, I have always been convinced that Americans are incapable of suffering direct blows . . ."

But Skorzeny dissuaded Himmler, according to his book.

Skorzeny bemoans the fact that his commando units were formed so late in the war that their efforts were thwarted. By that time he was unable to obtain supplies and equipment. Germany was short of gasoline; its air force had been shot out of the skies; and it was losing masses of tanks, guns and other materiel daily as the Allies drove forward.

Nevertheless, under Skorzeny's leadership a small band of volunteers staged the daring kidnaping of Italy's Benito Mussolini from his prison in Italy; under his direction English-speaking, American-uniformed German soldiers threw the Allies into confusion during the Battle of the Bulge.

A great admirer of Lord Louis Mountbatten and his British commandos, Skorzeny studied the British tactics and adapted them. He outfitted his troops with weapons taken from captured British commandos.

Lacking planes, he planned to use a number of Flying Fortresses that had crash-landed in German territory. But they were destroyed in an Allied raid just as their repair had been completed.

Skorzeny's story is mainly one of failure, but it is evident that it might have been otherwise had his talents been put to use earlier in the war. He was a master of improvisation.

Atomic Expert Heads Stalin Prize Group

MOSCOW, Dec. 26 (AP).—The chairman of a newly appointed 12-man committee to select the winners of the first annual Stalin peace prizes is a Soviet expert on atomic research.

He is Prof. Dimitri Skobletsyn of Moscow University, a member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. He is the co-author of articles on "The Atomic Bomb" and "Atomic Energy" in the newly issued Soviet Encyclopedia. The articles make clear that Soviet scientists do not discount the possibility of producing a hydrogen bomb.

The presidium of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) named the committee today. It was not announced when the committee will convene. A decree at the time of Prime Minister Stalin's birthday last year said the 1950 prizes would be awarded on his seventy-first birthday, December 21, but they were not.

The decree provided that, on each of Stalin's birthdays, from five to ten persons would receive 100,000 rubles ($25,000 at the Soviet valuation) each "for strengthening peace among the peoples."

The other 11 members of the committee include Chinese, French, British, Danish, Polish, Romanian, Italian, German, Chilean and Russian writers, professors and scientists. Prof. John Bernal, physicist of London University and Marquezi Concetto, deputy in the Italian parliament and professor at Padua University, are included.

Radio Reports

Ho's Envoy Is Accepted By Peiping

SAIGON, Indo-China, Dec. 26 (AP).—Communist China has approved Hoang Van Hoan as Minister to Peiping from Communist Ho Chi Minh's Viet Minh Nationalist regime, the Viet Minh radio announced today.

The broadcast did not say whether Peiping is sending a diplomatic representative to the Viet Minh, which is warring against the French and the French-sponsored Viet Namese government of Ex-Emperor Bao Dai.

The Viet Minh announcement today coincided with fresh attacks by Ho's troops against the thin French defenses in northeast Indo-China along a 40-mile front.

A French military spokesman said pressure developed southeastward to Tienyen from Moncay, a French-held Tonkin Gulf port on China's border.

Army thought here is that the decisive struggle will come in the lowlands of the Red River delta area between Hanoi and Haiphong.

Weigh Results of 2 Ideologies, Nehru Urges

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 26 (AP).—Prime Minister Nehru today said the struggle between communism and democracy will be decided, not on the field of battle, but by proving to the people which ideology yields the best results.

Speaking before the Indian Chemical Manufacturers Association, Nehru declared that in the final analysis the people might discard both communism and democracy for some "intermediary or other methods."

He said the people must stop thinking in terms of slogans and approach the question realistically.

The prime minister said that in the United States "the free enterprise" nature of capitalism is changing and today one worker out of every five works for the Government. As for Russia, he said, the Soviet leaders are interpreting Marxism as they see fit.

Referring to conditions in India, Nehru said private enterprise here "might be clever in making money, but just not wise enough." He added that the ultimate test lies, not in accumulation of a private fortune, but in raising the standards of the people.

Nehru appealed to India's industrialists to think realistically and not enter into academic discussions of the relative values of nationalism and private enterprise.

"Let us sit down and consider," he said, "here is the job to be done for India. We want so much food, clothing, housing, education and health. Let us set about thinking how best we can get them, produce them and distribute them properly."

U. N. Occupying New Building

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP).—Thousands of United Nations employes began work today in their skyscraper headquarters overlooking New York's East River, leaving only a skeleton crew at Lake Success.

By the first week in January, all but about 500 of the U. N. 3400 staff members will have taken over offices in the 39-story, 65-million-dollar building on East 42d st. The U. N. address will then be officially changed from Lake Success to "United Nations, New York."

The Lake Success meeting rooms, together with the Flushing Meadow Assembly building, will be kept by the U. N. until the conference area in the skyscraper headquarters is completed early next summer.

The area at Lake Success is gradually being taken over by the Sperry Gyroscope Co., the original occupant.

The offices of U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie were being moved to the skyscraper today. A special penthouse apartment, the only living accommodation in the building, will also be provided for use of the secretary general.

During the past several months 300 truckloads of U. N. equipment have been moved to Manhattan at an estimated cost of $50,000. About 2400 U. N. employes are now in the new building.

Corporations' 1951 Condition Seen Excellent

By the United Press

American corporations approach 1951 in record financial shape as a result of a 12-year program of corporate working capital expansion, the Securities and Exchange Commission reported yesterday.

The accomplishment means that United States industry tackles the stepped-up defense production program with a production machine far superior to the manufacturing resources possessed by the United States when it entered World War II.

An SEC report showed that during the quarter ending with September, corporate working capital rose $2,200,000,000 to a record high of $75,900,000,000—more than triple the 1939 figure. It said the total for 1950 is likely to approach 77 billion dollars.

Since the end of 1939, working capital of United States industry has risen $51,400,000,000. In 1939, it was $24,500,000,000. When the Japanese hit Pearl Harbor in 1941, it was $32,300,000,000.

Physical Plant Improved

While building up their working capital, American corporations also improved their physical plant and equipment. They spent more than 18 billion dollars on it in 1950.

Recently the SEC reported that businessmen planned to spend in the first three months of 1951 about 30 percent more for plant and equipment than in the March quarter of 1950.

These first quarter spending plans envisage an outlay of about $4.800,000,000, against $3,700,000,000 in the March quarter of this year.

The report said the job of improving the country's industrial plant is going steadily forward, particularly in such areas as steel production.

Present steel capacity of 100,500,000 tons a year will be raised to 110,000,000 tons by the end of 1952. Some experts think the increase may be even more than that.

Increases in Cash, Inventories

The report showed most of the September quarter increase of $2,200,000,000 in working capital was a result of increases in cash, holding of Government securities and expansion of inventories. Such gains, of course, were offset by increased Federal taxation—tax liabilities rising $1,900,000,000 during the quarter to $12,300,000,000 on September 30.

Inventories were valued at $46,900,000,000 on September 30, having risen $1,600,000,000 during the quarter. Cash and bank deposits rose $1,100,000,000 to $26,900,000,000. Holdings of Government issues increased $1,200,000,000 to $19,500,000,000.

Small Business Unit Accused Of 'Fronting'

A House committee investigating lobbying yesterday accused the 2900-member Conference of American Small Business Organizations of acting as an undercover front in pressuring for laws favorable to big business.

A report by the committee, headed by Representative Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.), said the conference tried to hide details of its financial support by encouraging contributions of less than $500. Such contributions do not have to be reported in detail under Federal law.

The conference urged large concerns to buy membership by cloaking contributions in the names of office or district managers whose associations are not reported, the committee claimed. CASBO has a budget of about $50,000 a year.

"The conference has sought and in some cases obtained . . . financial support from interests that do not fit into any reasonable concept of small business," the report said.

It added that conference chairman Fred A. Virkuk of Chicago, in appealing for such support, "has emphasized its interests in legislative matters 'in which big business as such cannot come out in the open.'

"As for CASBO's claim that it voices the 'deliberated opinion' of small business, its methods of ascertaining and formulating such opinion, sometimes through loaded questionnaires, prepared resolutions and otherwise, should make the Congress wary of any figures which CASBO offers as a measure of small business opinion."

Ex-Wife Is Witness Against Remington

those present. She said the roommates had the Communist magazine, New Masses, and another "radical publication" in their room.

Late that spring, she testified, Remington said he would be discontinuing his party membership because it was "not expedient" to belong and he could "do more good outside." But she said she could recall nothing to indicate that he really changed his views.

She herself joined the party sometime in 1938 and tney were married that November, she testified.

Prosecution Statement

In his half-hour opening statement, the Government attorney said he would prove that Remington was a Communist Party member "over a period of 10 years"—beginning at Dartmouth in 1934 and ending with his War Production Board service in 1944. It was during the latter years that he met Miss Elizabeth Bentley, confessed former courier for the Communists who has testified that the youthful Government worker gave her official secrets for transmission to the Soviet Union. He heas denied this, declaring that Miss Bentley represented herself as doing research for the now defunct New York newspaper "PM."

Saypol told the jury he would show that Remington's adherence and loyalty were "primarily" to the Russians. But Chanler, in his 40-minute opening statement, declared that "never once in his life" did Remington "do anything to favor Russia over his own country."

Saypol spoke of the "Communist enemy within" the Nation today, of furtive meetings between Remington and Miss Bentley in "out-of-the-way places" in Washington and of Remington's ability for "slithering" to "throw some people off the track."

"Tough" Toward Russia, Is Reply

To this Chanler retorted that Remington's admitted youthful radicalism occurred in the age of the "common front' of Communists and liberals when that party had temporarily shelved its idea of overthrowing the Government, that there was nothing furtive about the Remington - Bentley meetings and that Remington's record in Washington proves he opposed "the known interests" of the Communist and, in fact, was "one of the very advocates of a get-tough-with-Russia policy."

Chanler taunted Saypol for not indicating that the Government would produce a party card for Remington to prove its case. The tall and lean defense attorney said the Government has had no difficulty producing cards in other ses and that if Remington had indeed been a Communist for the 10-year period he must have had at least 12 party cards because of the many different places he lived and jobs he held.

Before Mrs. Remington testified, Rauh attempted to have produced in court the Loyalty Review Board hearing transcript in the case of Solomon Adler, a Treasury Department employe. Rauh said he knew that Miss Bentley had testified in that case and that she said things "which will make it impossible for her to remember now what she couldn't remember before" about the collection of party dues. Miss Bentley has testified that she collected party dues from Remington but he has denied that.

Judge Noonan said that the file question could be met if and when Miss Bentley testifies. Saypol warned that the Government would decline to submit the files on the basis of the general presidential directive against revealing executive department records to the legislative or judicial branches.

Chandler also attempted to question the activities of the grand jury which indicted Remington but Judge Noonan halted that line of inquiry.

Law to Cover U. S. Employes

Service retirement automatically come under Social Security, except for such persons as census takers and some postoffice employes.

About 250,000 Federal workers will receive coverage immediately after the first of the year, and the number will grow, since most new appointments to the Federal service in this defense period will be in the temporary classification.

In addition, employes of these Federal agencies will be bracketed into Social Security coverage if not already covered for retirement:

Tennessee Valley Authority; State, county and community committees under the Production and Marketing Administration; production credit associations; national farm loan associations; Federal credit unions; Army post exchanges and similar organizations and Federal Reserve Banks.

Some Typical Questions

Here are some typical questions on governmental coverage:

Q. I work for a city which has a retirement system for some employes, but not for me. Can I get Social Security coverage?

A. Yes, provided the city and State take the necessary action to make a coverage agreement with the Federal Government.

Q. Would all employes of groups covered in agreements receive Social Security protection?

A. No. All employes already under a retirement system would have to be excluded.

Q. Are there any other Social Security exclusions affecting State or city employes?

A. Yes. Employes engaged in work relief projects. In addition, the State may decide to exclude services of an emergency nature, services performed by elected officials, part-time workers, workers paid on a fee basis, agricultural labor and work performed by a student.

McCarran Act Foes Organize Committee

the law has evoked in the two months since its passage have strengthened the opposition of those who were against its passage, and have opened the eyes of many who were not fully aware of the dangers of such repressive legislation," Thompson and Lovett said.

They cited three developments as offering hope for the belief that "this shameful legislation can be erased from the books by demand of the American people." They were:

1—A repeal measure introduced in the House by Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.).

2—Recent actions of leading national organizations such as the CIO and American Civil Liberties Union in favor of the law's repeal.

3—The recent Supreme Court decision that grand jury witnesses cannot be forced to divulge their Communist connections if they claim self-incrimination a decision the Communist party may use to back its claim that the Communist law's resgistration provisions are unconstitutional.

"We are convinced that the American people realize that the preservation of the Bill of Rights is their responsibility and that they will therefore join with us in demanding the repeal of this infamous act," the committee spokesmen said.

Members of Committee

The McCarran Act requires registration of the Communist party, Communist "front" groups and individual members of the Communist party. It contains numerous provisions designed to keep Communists and their followers out of Government jobs and defense plants, and to tighten the Nation's immigration laws.

The new group calls itself the "National Committee to Repeal the McCarran Act." Its sponsors include:

Methodist Bishop James C. Baker; Bishop W. J. Walls of the A. M. E. Zion Church; Rt. Rev. Benjamin D. Dagwell, Episcopal Bishop of Oregon; Bishop Gerald Kennedy, Portland Area, Methodist Church; Methodist Bishop Francis J. McConnell; Rt. Rev. Edward L. Parsons, Episcopal Bishop (retired) of San Francisco; Ralph Barton Perry, Harvard University philosophy professor; Prof. G. A. Borgese of the University of Chicago; Prof. Zechariah Chafee, jr., of Harvard University; Frank Rosenblum, secretary-treasurer of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers; and Dr. Abraham Cronbach of Hebrew Union College.

R. W. Fleming Made Partner In Folger Firm

By Oliver Goodman

Robert Wright Fleming has become a general partner in the Washington investment house of Folger, Nolan & Co., it was announced yesterday.

R. W. Fleming

Fleming, 32, became associated with the New York Stock Exchange firm in 1948. A native of Washington, he is the son of Robert V. Fleming, president and board chairman of the Riggs National Bank.

During World War II, young Fleming attained the rank of lieutenant commander. He saw service as a flight officer with the Carrier Qualification Training Unit and later as an air operations officer with the U.S.S. Ticonderoga. Following the war, he joined Pan American World Airways as a public relations representative.

He attended Lawrenceville School in New Jersey and is a graduate of George Washington University School of Business Administration. He was president of the senior class in 1941 and won letters in golf and tennis.

RECOVERING: David Bornet, vice president of the National Savings & Trust Co., is recovering from an eye operation at Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, 1147 15th st. nw., Bornet, one of the best known and liked bankers in Washington, is a veteran of more than 40 years' service with National Savings & Trust Co.

IN NEW POST: Fred M. Farwell, formerly of Washington, has been elected executive vice president of S. C. Johnson & Son, Inc. and will assume his new duties with headquarters in Racine, Wisc., on April 1. Farwell started his career with International Business Machines Corp.

Farwell

During the last war, he served as special staff assistant of the ordnance branch of the Office of Production Management, was in the Army for three years and rejoined IBM as Washington branch manager in 1946. He left the local post last January to become vice president of the IBM World Trade Corp. in Rio de Janeiro. The Johnson firm makes wax products.

ANOTHER GAIN: Baltimore & Ohio Railroad reported November net income of $1,214,789, a gain of $618,596 over the same 1949 period. This brought net for the first 11 months to $13,122,735, an upsurge of $7,064,736 over the corresponding period last year when strikes in the coal and steel industries cut sharply into the railroad's traffic.

INITIAL DIVIDEND: Directors of the Bank of Silver Spring have declared a dividend of twenty-five cents a share, payable December 28 to stock of record December 23. This is the first dividend since the nearby Maryland bank was organized in 1946.

UPSURGE: National Airlines reported November net income of $110,965, against a loss of $210,531 in the same 1949 month. For the first five months of the airline's fiscal year (July through November), the net totaled $463,426, equal to 46 cents a common share. This compared with a loss of $898,579 for the same 1949 months. Revenue passenger miles during the period increased 50 percent above last year, according to President G. T. Baker.

REDEMPTION: The Southern Railway advised the Interstate Commerce Commission it will redeem $12,500,000 of its St. Louis division first mortgage 4 percent bonds next week when they fall due. However, the railroad said it desires then to change the maturity date to January 1, 1976, and hold the bonds itself for possible use in future financing operations. It asked ICC approval.

RECORD YEAR: The Howard D. Johnson Co. chain of restaurants, which operates extensively in the Washington area, estimates that dollar volume this year will be 10 to 12 percent more than in 1949. The number of customers served has been about 15 percent ahead of the estimated 200 million served in 1949, which previously was the chain best year. By the year-end, 305 Howard Johnson restaurants will be in operation. Of the total, 90 are company-owned, with the balance operated by franchise holders.

ODD LOTS: Air express shipments in and out of Washington rose 23 percent during the first 15 days of December, compared with the same period last year, Railway Express Agency reports . . . Bache & Co. is presenting a new booklet explaining commonly asked questions about stocks and bonds and how to invest . . . Floyd J. Hosking has been made executive vice president of Corn Industries Research Foundation, which has offices in Washington . . . John L. Timanus, Washington, has been named secretary of the purchases and stores division of the Association of American Railroads . . . American Locomotive Co., which has been given a 100-million dollar war tank contract, has set up a separate division for ordnance production at its Schenectady works.

Memo on Ideological Warfare: 9 Out of 10 Have Stake in U. S.

By J. A. Livingston

JOSEF STALIN is going to have a mad on the Federal Reserve System. And on the University of Michigan Survey Research Center. They've just got up some statistics that show how well off Americans really are—not the men and women who own giant corporations, or have well-paying professional occupations, like medicine, or architecture, or engineering. No sir, these statistics cover everyone.

Livingston

They're something entirely new to this world, too. They're an inventory of what American families are worth. Never had such an undertaking been made anywhere before. And, of course, the figures aren't infallible. The information applies only to a small sample of the population. But, if anything, it underestimates rather than overstates America's well-offness.

What ought to make Stalin sit up and take notice is this: Ninety-two percent of American families are worth something. The things they own—their savings bonds, savings deposits, automobiles, real estate and so on—exceed their debts.

Well, you say to yourself, what's so super-duper about that? Why shouldn't most families be worth something? Why should Stalin be impressed? Well, the figures minimize the stake of Americans in America. For instance, the statisticians didn't include furniture or clothing, because after all you can't estimate the market value of such things.

NOR DID THEY include insurance policies, yet a large proportion of Americans have insurance. But the surveyors figured that most people wouldn't know the net worth of the policy, the paid-up value.

Actually, the figure worked in reverse. If a family had borrowed on an insurance policy, it reduced the family's net worth. The debt was treated as a debt. Yet, you can't borrow on an insurance policy unless the paid-in value of the policy equals or exceeds what you're borrowing. In spite of the exclusion of so important an item, 9 out of 10 families were solvent, their assets exceeded liabilities.

Incidentally, the fact that people borrow, that they spend more than they earn, is not a sign of poverty. Six out of each 10 consumer units who dissaved in '49 had a net worth of at least $1000 in 1950. You might almost say that going into debt was a mark of substance.

Furthermore, half of the families that had a negative net worth were young. The heads of the households were 34 years or less. They hadn't had time to accumulate a financial stake.

AS YOU'D SURMISE, the older people become, the greater their financial reserves. More than half the spending units with heads of families 45 years of age and up had a net worth of at least $5000. For most people that's a year's salary or more. It indicates a substantial property stake—in the form of ownership of a home, savings bonds, bank deposit, an automobile and the pleasure it brings, and for a comparatively few families—7 percent—it represents ownership of corporate stock, either preferred or common.

By far the biggest block of families—69 percent—owned Government bonds, checking accounts, savings accounts, shares in savings and loan associations. That is especially significant in view of the aging character of the United States population. Back in 1940, 41 percent of the population over 19 years was in the age bracket 45 years and up; today the proportion is 43 percent, and by 1960 it's estimated at 47 percent.

The overall inference is this. Despite large disparities in income and assets, most Americans have something to live for—to preserve—as well as live on. That's our great strength, ideology, in the struggle with Stalin.

Compton to Get Hoover Medal

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (NYHT).—Dr. Karl T. Compton, chairman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been awarded the 1950 Hoover medal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Society of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, it was announced today.

Scott Turner, chairman of the board of awards, said the award was for distinguished public service and will be presented to Dr. Compton at a meeting of the American Society of Electrical Engineers at the Hotel Statler on January 22.

The award was made to Dr. Compton as a "great leader in engineering education, who has had a profound influence on the development of science and engineering and has devoted himself wholeheartedly to the welfare of the Nation, both in times of peace and in times of war."

Short Circuit Blamed For 15th Street Blaze

Fire caused by a short-circuited lamp cord brought eight pieces of fire apparatus to 1026 15th st. nw. yesterday afternoon. A window drape was destroyed in the blaze.

Here's the
25 Millionth Chevrolet

Thanks to the Greatest Public Demand any Motor Cars and Trucks Have Ever Enjoyed, the Latest Million Chevrolets have been Produced in Less Than 6 Months . . . Compared to 12 Years for the First Million!

We'd like to join all other Chevrolet dealers in thanking our customers for making possible this 25 millionth Chevrolet.

For the only reason anyone makes more products is because people want more of them. We Chevrolet dealers are able to deliver more passenger cars and trucks than any other automobile dealers today only because you prefer Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks over any other make.

So it is your overwhelming endorsement of the products and services we offer that is behind the production of this 25 millionth Chevrolet less than six months after completion of the 24 millionth.

We are sincerely grateful. And we believe the best way we can express our gratitude is to continue to offer you the very finest services and the very greatest values that we possibly can.

And that is exactly what we intend to do!

MORE PEOPLE BUY CHEVROLETS THAN ANY OTHER CAR! ★ MORE CHEVROLET TRUCKS IN USE THAN ANY OTHER MAKE!

New Glue Sticks Fine -But Much Too Soon

General Electric Company scientists have a firm hold on a new and remarkable substance—or vice versa.

Their product is a cementing liquid. But it stays liquid only in constant exposure to bubbles of air, and hardens within a few minutes when not well ventilated.

It has a number of practical uses, they say, but it poses the problem of how to package and ship it. Something like the storage problem for the proverbial solvent that dissolves anything.

If and when they can get it out of their Schenectady, N. Y., research laboratories in a still-liquid form it should prove ideal as a "dope" for sealing leaks in pipe lines, the G. E. technician thinks. It's also good for sealing threaded joints, and cementing nuts to bolts to eliminate the need for lock nuts.

Called "Anaerobic Permafil"

For want of a better name, they call their new product an "anaerobic permafil," borrowing the first word from the biologists. "Anaerobic" was originally coined by Louis Pasteur to mean "non-air-living," and is used by bacteriologists to designate organisms that remain inactive in air but thrive and propagate in the absence of air.

The material is the latest in a series of related compounds called "permafils" developed by the G. E. chemists. Originally, these protective coatings were called "solventless varnishes," in that they harden to a varnish-like surface without the usual varnish-hardening process—evaporation of its solvent.

The "permafils," it was explained, have the advantage over varnishes in some applications, such as for use between pieces of metal placed closely together. In varnishing such, the solvent nearest the air evaporates and forms a skin over the remaining liquid, preventing its hardening.

Both Good and Bad

The "permafils," which harden without evaporation by a chemical change called polymerization, overcome the difficulty. Generally, the hardening is accomplished by heating or the addition of chemicals, called catalysts or accelerators, to speed the process.

The new anaerobic permafil, however, is more spontaneous. It solidifies quickly without heat or other chemicals.

That's good—and bad, said one of its developers, Dr. C. G. Suits, G.E. vice president and director of research.

Dr. Suits said that when two metal strips are coated lightly with the new substance the joint will support 10 pounds after 10 minutes. After 20 hours, it will support 200 pounds, he said. And, where heat is applied, the solidification takes place in a minute or less.

He and laboratory scientists Robert E. Burnett and Birger W. Nordlander, who developed the substance, admitted they hadn't much hope of ever getting the product into home use.

But maybe, with dry ice packing or portable bubblers, they'll some day get it out of their laboratory into use in commercial plants, they said.

In the meantime, they'll keep their pots bubbling for continued research, they said.

The Gallup Poll

Aid to Tito Is Favored By Public

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 26.—Continued aid to Yugoslavia, in the hope of cementing friendship, is backed by the weight of American public sentiment, a national opinion survey shows.

But a person's enthusiasm for aid to Tito depends largely on how optimistic he is about chances of getting Yugoslavia's 32 divisions to fight on our side in case of war with Russia.

The public is closely divided on that point.

The immediate reason for sending aid is a pressing food shortage in Yugoslavia caused by severe drought.

Here are the reactions of the American public in the survey:

"Have you heard or read anything about the trouble Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia is having with food shortages in that country?"

Yes, have heard	45%
No, have not	55
	100%

All voters, both informed and uninformed on the above question, were then asked two additional questions.

The first was:

"Should the United States continue to give aid to Yugoslavia, or not?"

	Total Public	Best Informed
Should continue aid	44%	60%
Should not	30	25
No opinion	26	15
	100%	100%

The final question was this:

"In case of a war with Russia, do you think Yugoslavia will fight on our side, or not?"

The vote:

	Total Public	Best Informed
Would fight on our side	30%	39%
Would not	32	34
No opinion	38	27
	100%	100%

In short, there is a close division of sentiment, even among the more informed group, on the question of whether Tito would stick with the West in case of a showdown.

Nevertheless the weight of sentiment is for continuing aid, presumably in the hope that this will bring the Tito regime clearly over on our side.

Arnold, Rep. Norton And a Gayety 'Apple'

By Richard L. Coe

"APPLE OF HIS EYE," the Gayety's bucolic comedy wherein Edward Arnold returns to the stage of a city which knew him well as a leading member of the National Players before his movie stardom, is not much of a play but it serves to point up the local proble mabout child actors.

Arnold and his company will soon be playing this across the country and with them will be a poised, well-fed little girl of eight, one Mary Beth Fitzpatrick. These two weeks her brief but definitve role is being played by her elder sister, Nannette, who is safely over 14, the minimum age for child actors appearing on District stages.

Producer Thomas Hammond shied away from making an issue of Mary Beth in deference to dignity, although Star Arnold discussed ways and means of getting around the proviso with his old friends, the District Commissioners.

With Representative Mary T. Norton's name being bruited about as a possible Commissioner next year, perhays Washington theater goers may find a friend to do something about this matter. For Mrs. Norton, after 25 years in Congress, during which she headed the House Committees on the District and on labor, has a fine record both for that aspect of public service and for getting things done.

Should President Truman appoint Mrs. Norton, it would be well for someone to acquaint her with the fact that not only is this simple little comedy harmed by our present law but also that such plays as "Peter Pan," "The Innocents," "South Pacific," "The Happy Time" and "The Member of the Wedding" cannot legally play the Capital City.

This comedy and those hits, however, can play virtually all the other cities in the country, which have proper laws covering the matter, at the same time protecting the children. And surely it is incongruous to find children performing furiously on film, radio and television sets.

The role Mistress Fitzpatrick plays in "Apple of His Eye" is that of Arnold's granddaughter. She's the daughter of a youngish couple and for an 8-year-old to cry about missing a carnival is one thing but for a 16-year-old to take on as directed is just one more absurdity.

The play, originally performed here for the Theater Guild subscription season at the National five years ago by Walter Huston, tells of a middle-aged farmer's love for his hired girl and how he finally overcomes family and friends to pop the fateful question.

It is one of those rural adventures whose start always makes me feel I've missed something by being a city type and by Act 3 of which I'm jubilant that I am.

Those Greedy Rustics

For "quaint" as are the characters dreamed up by Charles Robinson and Kenyon Nicholson, they exhibit none of the homely virtues imagined by those to whom barns are familiar only through oil paintings by one's wife.

There are the snoopy neighbor; the weak, foolish son; the avaricious daughter-in-law; the busybody, ageing housekeeper; the hired girl's father who hopes to profit by his daughter's alliance with the township's richest man and the aforementioned brat of a granddaughter. If these are the dear, lovable types one finds as country neighbors, I'll gloat over my sidewalks of New York.

The playing is agreeable without being inspired and I suppose some of the local slickers in last night's goodly house enjoyed it.

Even a prosperous Indiana farmer is something of a switch for Arnold, whose best movie roles have been those of apoplectic billionaires. It seemed to me the star was laboring under a cold last night and though he still wears pretty expensive shoes and treats a wall telephone as though it's a headset kind, he gets across the reiterated humors of an oldsters in love with youth. For what it's worth, my wife refused to be withered by my look after she remarked that she thought Arnold was better as Sam Stover than was the late Huston. Was she kidding?

Miss Preston Amusing

Best of the supporting players is a wonderfully sour-faced woman named Edna Preston, the displaced housekeeper. Her sniffing contempt for the proceedings was amusing indeed and one admired her ability to quickly establish her character and knock it across.

Frances Waller, as the hired girl, is entirely too pretty to be running around other people's farms, but she manages to make plausible the author's none-too-sensational idea. Fred E. Sherman does well in a character role and the teen-aged Miss Fitzpatrick tackled her 8-year-old gamely.

"Apple of His Eye" isn't sour, just bland.

"APPLE OF HIS EYE." Thomas Hammond presents the comedy in two acts by Kenyon Nicholson and Raymond Soney. Setting by Robert O'Hearn. Staged by Jerome Mayer. At the Gayety Theater.

that we had and we shall never be happy until it is returned to us."

In Scotland, from whence the stone was taken by England's King Edward I, leaders of the home-rule movement were jubilant but guarded in public comment.

The man-in-the-street reaction in Edinburgh was summed up by a Scottish editor as: "The stone belongs to Scotland, so its place is here and not in London."

Public officials, however, expressed the view that the return of the stone to Scotland ought to have been left to constitutional procedure.

The flat, yellowish sandstone block measures 26½ inches by 16½ by 11. It was taken to Scone, a little Scottish parish, by the country's first King, Kenneth I. That was in the Ninth Century. But the Celts from whom he took it already had worn it smooth as a coronation seat.

Zenith to Begin Phonevision Test Monday in Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 26 (AP).—Zenith Radio Corp. will begin its phonevision test to 300 selected Chicago families January 1.

Full length feature motion pictures from Hollywood and European producers, without advertising, will be offered at a home admission fee of $1 for each picture ordered by the viewer.

The movie telecasts from the Zenith experimental station will be "scrambled." Families with phonevision equipped television sets must order a "key signal" sent to their homes via telephone circuit, for each picture they order. The signal will "unscramble" the picture. A home admission fee of $1 will be charged for each picture unscrambled.

Government Buys Estate

of the late Oscar Terry Crosby, explorer and Assistant Secretary of Treasury under President Wilson. The Gothic, 24-room mansion overlooks Broadview Farm, where the traditional Gold Cup hunt race is held each year.

The estate was jointly owned by Crosby's three daughters, Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller of 1419 Wisconsin ave., Mrs. Juliette Crosby Hornblow of New York, and Countess Miriam Caracciola di Melito, who lives in Italy.

Members of the family have lived at the homestead on weekends and during the summer until recently.

Both armies fought over the rolling "View Tree" acres during the Civil War. The site where the stone mansion stands was considered then the best lookout point in the area.

Ian S. Montgomery and J. North Fletcher handled the estate during negotiations with the Government, it was said.

Spokesmen of Government Services Administration and the Department of Defense both denied last night that they had heard anything about the purchase of the Warrenton properties.

Death At Christmas

This newspaper has something of a prejudice against the usual holiday accidental death tallies which depict by means of statistics a spree of mass murder. Such figures often omit the fact that the "normal" winter highway accident rate in any three days, especially over a weekend, is high. Also, comparisons with figures a decade or more ago, are rendered invalid because of increases in population and automobiles.

When this is borne in mind, however, the figure of 515 automobile deaths over the Christmas weekend is still appalling. It is 102 above the same period last year and 75 above the National Safety Council prediction. Icy roads in thickly populated areas (including some of the worst the Washington area has seen in a long time) plus the fact that there were many additional pleasure cars in transit no doubt contributed to the increase. But the effect of overdoses of Christmas spirit cannot be overlooked. Los Angeles police, for example, arrested a record number of drunken drivers. Tipsy pedestrians, too, were a hazard. Figures recently compiled in Cleveland show that 2 of every 5 pedestrians killed by automobiles there had been drinking.

All of which suggests, as a timely reminder for the New Year weekend, that winter holiday travel is most safely accomplished by public transportation—particularly when entire families are involved. If you must use your car, then the old slogan applies with especial validity: If you drive, don't drink, and if you drink, don't drive.

Perverts In Government

Senator Clyde R. Hoey's Investigations Subcommittee has now completed its delicate and difficult study of the employment of homosexuals and other sex perverts in Government. Since this newspaper decried the study when it was first proposed as likely to lead to sensationalism of the worst sort, we take pleasure now in complimenting the subcommittee heartily on the manner in which it performed its task. Its hearings, entirely in executive session, carefully avoided all publicity and subjected no witnesses to shame or ridicule; and its report is characterized by good sense, a decent restraint and enlightened tolerance.

The subcommittee was wise enough to concern itself "only with those who engage in overt acts of homosexuality or other sex perversion." It found that in the past many Government agencies were careless about the problem but that they have adopted much more stringent procedures of late. Action was taken in 382 sex perversion cases involving civilian employes of the Government during the past seven months, as compared with only 192 similar cases in the previous three-year period. From these figures, it appears that the problem is not nearly so widespread as some alarmists have tried to make it seem. The subcommittee feels that perverts are unsuitable for Government employment both because they commit illegal and immoral acts and because they constitute security risks in that they are susceptible to the pressure of blackmail.

We should think that their unsuitability on the former ground would depend upon the discreetness of their conduct, and that their unsuitability on the latter ground would depend upon the particular governmental positions they occupy. A person whose behavior was circumspect would be unlikely to endanger security, we should suppose, if he were employed in, say, the Library of Congress—from which 15 presumed perverts were ousted since April of this year. The point is an important one because a hunt for homosexuals can become very dangerous indeed. It opens the way to idle, ignorant and malicious charges which are difficult to disprove. And it demands a type of personnel investigation which must intrude into areas which always have been and ought to be considered private.

The subcommittee recognizes the danger of mistaken accusations in this field by recommending the establishment of a board of review to hear the appeals of employes dismissed on grounds of perversion. Such a board is no doubt a necessity, since there are many security-sensitive positions from which persons who are sexually abnormal ought to be excluded. We think, however, that investigation ought to be confined to such positions, ought to be conducted by carefully trained investigators, ought to be sedulously scrutinized and ought to be carried through with as much regard as possible for the sensibilities and reputations of the unhappy individuals at whom it is aimed.

Japanese Future

Premier Yoshida has a powerful plea for a speedy peace settlement with the non-Communist powers in the current issue of Foreign Affairs. But he glosses over the issue of security. "The problem of Allied security," he says, "has been practically solved through the thorough demilitarization of Japan, mentally as well as physically." Has it? Five years ago, even three years ago, the Premier's statement would have been regarded as unexceptionable, and this aim underlay the constitution providing for demilitarization which took the place of the Meiji constitution. But the times have turned full circle, and, in our new need, we have begun to look upon our former enemy as a potential associate, if not partner. This would require remilitarization rather than demilitarization. Thus the nub of the security question from the American point of view is how to put Japan in a posture of defending itself in some degree of association with the United States and the rest of the free world.

Till recently, before our need became generally apparent, the key to a peace settlement was regarded as the inclusion in it of a provision to establish American bases in Japan. Such a device has never appealed to this newspaper. Nowadays, with the development of Sino-Russian pressure on our position in the Far East, there is nothing to commend it. What is required is the restoration to Japan of its sovereignty, free and unabridged, with the view of promoting an equal association in resistance to aggression. This may still be regarded as a reckless chance to take, but, in view of the changing state of things in the Far East, it seems unavoidable. The time for dictation to our former enemies has gone; persuasion has to be relied upon, and this will be successful only as it coincides with Japan's own views on the choices confronting it.

Fortunately a freed Japan is not likely in present circumstances either to seek an orientation toward Moscow or to strive for an impossible neutrality. Premier Yoshida says that the Japanese want "to serve as a bastion of democracy in the Far East." There is no reason to doubt the Prime Minister's sincerity. However, Japan cannot fill any such role without assistance in reclaiming its old trading position in the Far East. With this position restored, as the Japanese premier points out, Japan's dependence upon the American taxpayer could be terminated, and thus the aid would be a paying investment. But an economically rejuvenated Japan could return other dividends in strengthening the free world's threatened situation in Asia. Some time ago this newspaper declared that a revived Japan is the real ECA in Asia. The U. N. Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East has borne this out in its latest report; it notes that the trade between Japan and the countries of East Asia is complementary and beneficial to the entire area. Japan, indeed, is the natural workshop, banker, and trader in this part of the world, and it was a classic blunder completely to destroy that position. What was left was a series of prostrate economies dependent upon American charity and a prey to civil disturbances and communism.

What, even worse, was left was an immense power vacuum. Japan used to be a counterpoise to Russia in Asia, and the job of trying to restore a balance of power (as well as starting again in policy-making in Asia) requires the reincorporation of Japan in the power complex as a first consideration. Upon this subject Premier Yoshida is, of course, content with generalities. But if we cooperate in helping his country to recover this status within the context of existing agreements which stripped Japan of its territorial empire, then there is every hope that it will find ways and means of rearming itself in self-defense and at the same time of seeking a similar military arrangement with us in the Far East that we now have in the Atlantic with the British.

First Wage Freeze

The Government order freezing automobile wages until March 1 does not invalidate the escalator clauses of UAW contracts providing for quarterly wage adjustments linked to changes in living costs. Its purpose is to enable the Economic Stabilization Agency to comply with the provisions of the Defense Production Act, which requires wages to be stabilized in any industry whose products are under price ceilings, and to give the Wage Stabilization Board more time to study and develop a stabilization formula applicable to all controlled industries.

Although this provisional wage decree does not imply approval of the policy of adjusting wages with reference to changes in living costs, the inclusion of escalator clauses of the UAW type in the wage agreements reached with railway workers sets a precedent that the Wage Stabilization Board can scarcely disregard. Moreover, if the board were to ban all wage increases, wage contracts containing escalator clauses would be voided, workers would rebel, and strikes would multiply. To be sure, any wage increases add to inflationary pressure, because they raise production costs and compel some firms to charge more for their products. That is why this newspaper had, until recently, criticized automatic increases in wages under UAW contracts. However, conditions have changed; the national emergency makes it imperative to keep our industries operating at maximum capacity without interruption. Consequently, the Government's wage stabilization policy must be acceptable to organized labor as well as industry, even at the risk of encouraging inflation.

A certain amount of inflation will be unavoidable if the Government permits wages to be increased to allow for changes in living costs. But retention of escalator clauses in wage contracts would be a lesser evil than a rigid anti-inflation wage policy that would produce industrial disorder. If the Government succeeds in establishing an effective over-all system of price control, wage increases based on living costs will, in any case, be slight and have little effect on the general price level. Unfortunately the Defense Production Act affords little protection against increases in the cost of food—the most important item in most family budgets. Consequently, the wage-price merry-go-round will continue to whirl, with or without the aid of escalator clauses in wage contracts, unless the incoming Congress acts promptly to stiffen the control provision of the law in respect to agricultural products.

To Fight Another Day

There is a sort of victory in defeat in the successful Christmas Eve evacuation of the Hungnam beachhead. Though the frenzied withdrawal from Dunkirk in 1940 involved more men, it was only roughly comparable to the present orderly rescue. For the divisions of the Tenth Corps remained intact as fighting units until the last, and much if not most of their equipment was saved with them. The assemblage of the huge naval fleet and the precision embarkation of unit after unit was a marvel of logistics.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing of all was the withdrawal of some 100,000 North Korean civilians in addition to the 105,000-man composite military force. At present this is a bright spot in the sad and sometimes useless destruction which the war brought to the civilian populace. That 100,000 civilians wished to come along is a heartening commentary on the deportment of the United Nations forces. Actually there probably were left behind many thousands more anti-Communists whose lives will be endangered because of their cooperation in the U. N. advance. The Navy took all it could. In the process, of course, it might be creating future DP's, or postponing a survival problem for them should final withdrawal become necessary—but that is a matter of military chances.

Why were all those troops and civilians enabled to get away? Certainly U. N. plans were no secret; the Chinese and Russians knew of the huge flotilla. Yet there was little testing of U. N. control of the air, and no enemy submarines appeared, even as "volunteers." This suggests that the Russians are being very careful not to overplay their hand.

As for the Chinese Communists, if the Peking radio is an indication, they are glorying in their accomplishment, and swear they will capture the rest of Korea and Formosa as well. The Chinese boast is charged both with irredentism—the recapture of lost territories— and with satisfaction over a victory over the white man. Maybe this ambition to drive us out of Korea may conflict with the putative Russian aim not to push the U. N. out of Korea, but to keep as many U. N. troops as possible embroiled in a sort of perpetual stalemate there. At any rate, all indications are that the Chinese are building up for a big push at the thirty-eighth parallel, if, indeed, the push has not started. The addition of the Tenth Corps to the Eighth Army will be a welcome aid in resisting a new Communist drive or carrying out any other strategic plan the military leaders may have in mind.

Control Board

The five-man Subversive Activities Control Board, appointed last October by the President in conformity with the requirements of the McCarran Act, continues to lead a precarious and tentative existence. The Senate, which was in a great hurry to adopt the McCarran Act, has not found time to pass upon the men chosen to administer its registration features. Senator McCarran himself expressed doubt the other day that a quorum of his Judiciary Committee would be available to make recommendations to the Senate about the nominees before the current Congress adjourns. Meanwhile the members of the SACB are obliged to function on an interim basis—with a lively expectation that all or some of them will be rejected by the Eighty-second Congress when it convenes next month.

One cannot help wondering what manner of men the sponsors of the McCarran Act would like to see in charge of their extraordinary law. They have already upbraided the Attorney General for enforcing its immigration features too stringently. And now they appear to be fearful that the registration features won't be enforced stringently enough. The four men and one woman chosen by the President to serve on the SACB seem to be suspected of some intent to apply discretion and restraint in the exercise of their quasi-judicial roles.

If the Senate should reject these nominees, it will not be easy for the President to replace them. The assignment is far from an attractive one at best. It involves nothing less than the licensing of voluntary associations—a restraint upon the right of assembly and petition unprecedented in the history of this Republic. Moreover, the Senate Judiciary Committee has put the board on notice that it will brook no liberality in its decisions; the committee proposes to act as a watchdog over the board. It will be difficult to get responsible men to serve under such circumstances. The only alternative left to the President then will be to appoint irresponsible men, let them administer the act in the spirit of intolerance that inspired it—and be taunted, as the Attorney General has been taunted, with the charge that he is attempting to make a mockery of the law by interpreting its provisions literally.

Hoover's Counsel

It is deeply surprising that a man of so renowned stature as former President Hoover could come forth with so stupid a proposal that the United States should abandon western Europe. To follow such a course as he has proposed would also be to abandon everything that has been accomplished in foreign policy.

No man can live by himself, without cooperation from others in a society. The Soviets have followed a course of knocking off countries, one by one. This Administration is trying to stop that plunderers' course. The Hoover faction of the GOP could do no more to aid the Soviets than the very course Mr. Hoover has outlined in his speech.

CLYDE LOOPER.
Stillwater, Okla.

It must be comforting and reassuring to thousands of American mothers and fathers to at long last have a high and respected citizen like Mr. Hoover sound a definite note of cautionary action.

Mr. Hoover has visited many foreign countries and his wisdom has mellowed with age. He therefore does not rant and rave about what we must do, but cautiously and wisely suggests solidifying our base of operations which includes the entire Western Hemisphere, before we chance a premature campaign, which might truly bog down in the quagmires of so vast a country as China.

ALFRED F. BOHN.
Hagerstown, Md.

Perhaps Mr. Hoover did the country a service in revealing the futility of our present methods for stopping Communist armed aggression, and perhaps he performed a necessary service in revealing to the world the lack of unity which exists in the United States as to just how it can be done. I venture to say, however, that there are plenty of top-flight statesmen and military strategists who see no more merit in Mr. Hoover's recommendations than he sees in Mr. Truman's.

Perhaps true security lies in quite a different direction. This was pointed out by the greatest scientist of our day, Albert Einstein, apropos of defending America against the atomic bomb:

"Our defense is not in armaments, nor in science, nor in going underground. Our defense is in law and order."

For Or Against Us

Millions of voters are ready to sacrifice everything, give up luxuries, get down to bedrock, ready to work, sweat, fight and even die in order to maintain our freedoms and go ahead once again trying to make things better after the war is won.

But I doubt that they'll put up with any man or any party who are more afraid to offend Mao and his Communist murderers than of offending families and friends of our men murdered by Chinese armies who took off from bases our men were not allowed to bomb.

The Democrats can wreck themselves with a stupid foreign political policy quite as easily as the Republicans wrecked themselves on a stupid foreign monetary policy that kept the dollar ringing true while banks and business folded here at home.

The "one-world" collection of miscellaneous states with nothing in common except a desire for peace, ease and security without work has proved to be a Communist trap for ruthless imperialist dictatorship over all peoples.

Now is the time for a fighting American policy designed to extend the benefits of the American system only to those who believe in the American system enough to fight for our ideals and our principles. To all nations and all peoples now is the time to say, as Andrew Jackson might have said: "You are either for us, or agin' us. Either fight with us or move into the Communist sphere and take what that brings you."

"Holy City"

Thank you for your editorial on December 8, on the "Holy City." It would seem to me, after studying this whole matter, that the idea expressed in the Swedish resolution to which you referred and indorsed would be a most happy solution to this problem. I personally feel that the internationalization of the holy places is, after all, what most people really want. It would scarcely seem that anyone could develop very strong arguments opposing such a step.

Our genuine appreciation to you for indorsing this practical and reasonable proposal. We may still, through this suggestion, find a way to peace in the Middle East.

"Impasse Over Haya"

Your editorial of December 21 on the Haya de la Torre case appears to be based on incomplete information. As a resident of Peru, sales manager for an American exporter to South America, from 1946 until this year, I was in Lima during the October revolutionary attempt in Callao for which Haya is being sought for trial and had numbers of Peruvian friends on both sides of the political fence from whom to draw a balanced opinion.

The actual case is based on national security, not political persecution as you state. The Apra Party was founded years ago in the same mold as the Communist Party under the rule of Stalin, as Haya spent some years of his exiled periods in Russia observing that system. He has no loyalty to Moscow and has bitterly fought communism itself; nevertheless, his own party follows the same propaganda line to attract support of the ignorant masses and has the same interior organization.

The history of the Aprista Party in Peru has been one of continuous terrorism and assassination of opponents, and many of these incidents have been particularly brutal. Cases in point are the massacre of the garrison troops at Trujillo, the organized mob murder of the Mayor of Cerro de Pasco, the murder of the wife with that of a leading newspaper editor, etc. Under the democratic administration of Bustamente such cases were tried with extreme deliberation and justice according to the Latin code. However, it has been conclusively demonstrated many times, and confirmed by Apristas who resigned from the party in protest against its terrorist methods, that Haya was just as much the boss and responsible for party members' actions as is Stalin.

Consequently, when the October 3, 1948, revolution was attempted in Callao by the Aprista leadership it was also a savage affair with over 3000 casualties, including two ambulance loads of wounded soldiers machine gunned by the besiegers of the fort. Conclusive evidence was brought out later that the affair was planned by Haya and financed by a Peruvian-American cocaine smuggler in New York. That was the final straw to the present government of Peru, who came to power as a result of that revolution.

When General Odria, who had long advocated strong measures against the Apristas, took over he ordered trial of their leaders, including Haya. The basis of the trials was not laid on political persecution, since the Aprista Party had long been legal opposition but outlawed shortly before October 3, but on the fact that Haya had planned and directed such a bloody revolt—as its commander in chief—and on his previous terroristic policy of assassination.

In 1946 Haya's party held a commanding position in the politics of Peru as a legal party, but the January, 1947, murder of Grana Garland lost him so much support that he could not break the later strike of opposition congressmen and was forced to revolution as the only alternative to the dissolution of the Apristas. The murders that followed between that of Grana and the October revolt are as much a part of the charges on which Peru wishes to try Haya as the revolt itself.

Haya was extremely successful in selling his program to this country and especially to our then Ambassador to Peru, Mr. Prentice Cooper. There was a lot of solid benefit stated in that program and, if followed, with honesty and patriotism, the country would have been bettered. But actions speak louder than words and they shouted that the stated policy was on the same plane as the stated policy of communism, a means of attracting the support of the masses for their eventual enslavement. Many liberal Peruvians eagerly joined the party in its beginning, but practically none were left by the end of 1947 and several of those dissenters have told me the same things I state above.

It would be well to compromise in the solution, but I doubt that General Odria can afford to do so politically. I know that the Colombian Ambassador is fed up with his special — and demanding — guest, for he told me so, and I believe that the Colombians would be quite satisfied to be let off their hot seat by a World Court decision that would save their faces. If they do, Haya will be "legally" executed within a year from the decision, which may or may not be a good thing. ROY C. SMITH.

Understanding China

May I compliment your columnist, Mr. Marquis Childs, on his illuminating article of December 22, "Understanding Red China"? It is to be regretted that the American people have not long ago been apprised of what I, too, believe to be the fact, that the revolution going on in Asia and Europe "is not the work of a few puppets inspired from and directed from Moscow."

This summer, in historic Concord, I stood before the monument erected to the British soldiers who fell there. I could not help paraphrasing the words dedicated to them to fit our own situation:

"They came 8000 miles and died
To keep the past upon its throne,
And high above the ocean tide
Their Yankee mother made her moan."

Transit Radio

Capital Transit is not keeping faith in its promises regarding radio programs. There is a current announcement of a medicine that is disgusting, uncouth and vulgar. To hear this blaring loudly at an early morning hour is enough to make one ill. In fact, all the commercials are announced in very loud tones. The programs are constantly getting bolder and bolder; and we poor riders have no recourse.

Chiang's Defeats

I never cease to be amazed at the strange notions people come up within this era of rabid and thunderous right-wing propaganda.

Mr. Patrick J. Murphy, in his letter of December 20, deplores a Herblock cartoon on China, because it clearly shows that Herblock believes Chiang Kai-shek was kicked out of China by a Chinese people who were fed up with him, rather than according to the prevalent right-wing explanation (for everything), i. e., Russian machinations.

Mr. Murphy speaks of the "heroic fight," albeit a losing one, put up by Chiang's army against the "hordes" of Chinese Reds, etc. I quote for Mr. Murphy's benefit a passage from China Shakes the World by Jack Belden, comparing the numerical strength of Chiang and the Communists at the outset of all-out civil war in China a few years ago:

	Chiang	Communists
Population	340,000,000	110,000,000
Army	4,000,000	1,200,000
Irregulars	1,000,000	1,500,000

Now, Mr. Murphy, to resume, as you were saying about the Red "hordes" who overwhelmed Chiang's little band . . . .

Vital Spot In Defense

By Malvina Lindsay

Home Or Factory?

FROM MANY parts of the country, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Detroit, other cities, comes word that Rosie the Riveter is going back to work. "Fine," say those concerned with stepping up defense production. For Rosie's a smart girl with a strong arm and still under 35. Not bad-looking either. Just what industry wants!

But what about the two or more children Rosie has acquired since 1945? Are they to be farmed out just anywhere? Shifted from one relative or neighbor to another? Left in care of ignorant, often unreliable help?

Most citizens vaguely "suppose" there will be day care centers for children of women who work. But what day care centers? The two in Washington closed this week for lack of funds, thus setting adrift about 300 children of working mothers and widowed fathers.

And while in some regions representatives of industry are ringing doorbells of former women war workers imploring their return to their old jobs, little community planning on where these women are to park their children is under way.

When Congress meets, legislation will be introduced to authorize funds to help States set up day centers similar to those operated with Federal aid during the war. But the usual wait for any concrete action may be expected.

MUCH OF the Nation is not aware of how big this day care task will be as the rearmament program gets into high gear. The country now has a tremendous child population—about 19 million under 6, nearly 33 million under 10. New defense workers being sought are chiefly younger mothers at home who married during or after the war. What's more, there's increasing talk of the 48-hour week, even a longer one, in critical defense industries.

There's also the tight space situation. Elementary school buildings, in which many day care centers were housed during the war, are now bursting with children. There are fewer empty storerooms; less space is available in community centers and churches.

Child authorities are urging financial action by both States and Congress to get day centers started and available to mothers, who would be expected to pay according to capability. Official standards for centers need to be set up to prevent commercial racketeers from taking over what could be a lush field. Small neighborhood centers rather than large ones are advised in light of wartime experience. Training programs are needed for volunteers, including high school girls.

HOWEVER, this industrial mobilization of housewives should be viewed in an even larger perspective than that of day care centers for children. Is it necessary for industry to concentrate so largely on the woman needed so greatly in her home? Why is it not—with Government's prodding—exploring other untapped sources of labor, other means than the traditional in getting the job done?

Men and women 55 and past are being neglected as a labor source, State Senator Thomas C. Desmond of New York, chairman of the State Joint Legislative Committee on Problems for the Aging, declared recently. He especially decried the prejudice of industry against older women, pointing out that the country had 7,600,000 women 55 and past "who represent the greatest single source of untapped industrial production." Many employers, he said, vanted only the young, pretty girls in the belief they were stronger and more adaptable. Yet older persons today, he declared, were more vigorous, better educated, better qualified for work than ever before.

A program of part-time jobs in industry could bring many older persons into effective use, as well as make it possible for younger housewives to work with less upset to their households. The Children's Bureau takes the stand that children under 3 should not have public care—also that children up to 12 or 14 need definite supervision.

At the recent Midcentury White House Conference on Children and Youth, Dr. DeNorval Unthank, of Portland, Oreg., raised the question as to whether the wartime practice of drawing younger mothers into industry should be followed in the prolonged crisis the country now faced. "Maybe," he said, "we should make stronger efforts to keep mothers in the home rearing their babies and young children."

New Isolationism

By Marquis Childs

Why America Needs Europe

THE WORD appeasement is acquiring a more and more uncertain connotation. Herbert Hoover made generous use of it in his talk on foreign policy, suggesting that the wartime conferences at Tehran and Yalta were forms of appeasement.

Childs

The conference at Tehran was concerned almost entirely with military decision. In hindsight, and in the light of military intelligence not then available, the decisions taken at Yalta appear to have made needless concessions to the Soviet Union. But it is important to remember that both Churchill and Roosevelt were acting in the belief that some sort of peaceful relationship with Russia could be achieved in the postwar world.

Right through Tehran and Yalta down to the present, the Western nations have shown an unfailing readiness to cooperate for peace. This gives the West today a position of great moral strength which is too often ignored or discounted.

Last June after seeing Stalin in Moscow, the United Nations Secretary General, Trygvie Lie, proposed a 10-point long-range peace plan. Communists around the world immediately championed it, with the New York Daily Worker accusing Secretary of State Acheson of rejecting it because of "a refusal to have peace under any conditions whatever."

BUT WHAT has happened since? A month ago the U. N. General Assembly adopted a resolution approving Lie's peace plan. This, as the Wilmington (Del.) Morning News pointed out in a recent editorial, is the same plan, word for word and comma for comma, that the Communist press has been ballyhooing and accusing the United States of opposing.

Who voted against it? Soviet Russia and the four other Iron Curtain members of the U. N. Russia's Jacob Malik even went so far as to charge that the Lie plan was hatched by the British, French and American governments.

To seek peace is not appeasement. But it is appeasement to surrender what one is pledged both by principle and promise to defend. And that, it seems to me, is what Mr. Hoover has done. What he proposes is that the United States abandon western Europe to create a sort of Gibraltar in the United States.

News dispatches since the speech have told how profoundly unsettling this has been to Europeans, and certainly that should surprise no one. The line taken by Mr. Hoover and others who speak like him provides one side of the vise in which the hope for western Europe is being squeezed out of existence.

The other side of that vise is, of course, supplied by Communist Russia. Very shortly, perhaps even before this can appear in print, the Soviet Union is expected to renounce its treaties with France and Great Britain. Already Moscow has warned that the plan to rearm western Europe, including Germany, is a violation of those treaties.

But when they are formally renounced, Europe is certain to feel a new wave of fear. It is the kind of step that has traditionally preceded an act of war.

RUSSIA implies that an attack is imminent. Mr. Hoover has intimated to west Europeans that they are incapable of defending themselves and that therefore America must retire across the sea. As these two sides of the vise close in, nothing is left but despair and futility.

One thing this does is to make General Eisenhower's job more difficult. It was difficult enough before, heaven knows! But Eisenhower was willing to tackle it because, along with most military men, he understands that western Europe is important to the defense of the United States.

That is true certainly at this stage of our military preparation when so large a share of our defense is predicated on strategic air power. The new B-47 jet bomber that is beginning to come into production is considered by all those pushing its production to be far in advance of anything anywhere. But there must be bases on the other side of the Atlantic for the B-47 to operate most effectively.

When Mr. Hoover talked about using Britain as a possible bastion, he ignored the swift progress of technology in warfare. With the continent of Europe in control of hostile powers, the British Isles would be subject to attack from the new and greatly improved guided missiles that make the V-1's and the V-2's of the last war look pretty old-fashioned. Under bombardment from these new weapons, it would be difficult or impossible to sustain any military operation of size.

Significantly, many of those now counseling retreat were also saying in 1939 and 1940 that France and Britain could not be defended from the Nazis. The threat this time is greater than it was a decade ago. But those who counseled despair and defeatism the last time were wrong, and they could be wrong again.

Prayers Added For Catholics' World Jubilee

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 26 (AP).—Roman Catholics will be required to say more prayers, especially for peace, than did the pilgrims to Rome in the 1950 Holy Year to gain the benefits of its extension through 1951 to the whole world.

The papal bull extending the Holy Year, now concluded in Rome, through 1951 to the world outside Rome was published today in L'Osservatore Romano, the Vatican City newspaper.

The four million pilgrims to Rome in 1950 could acquire the spiritual benefits of the jubilee by reciting three times the prayers "Our Father," "Hail Mary" and "Glory Be to the Father," besides saying each one of them for the intentions of the Pope and reciting the "Credo." The intentions of the Pope are the particular benefits to the world that he outlined as the purposes of the Holy Year, including peace.

Jubilee prayers during 1951 will consist of repeating the "Our Father," the "Hail Mary" and the "Glory Be to the Father" five times, saying each of them for the Pope's intentions, reciting the "Credo," saying three additional "Hail Marys" along with the invocation, "Queen of Peace, for Us," and the "Salve Regina."

Finally, though it is not obligatory, Catholics are exhorted to recite the special prayer composed by the Pope for the Holy Year.

Otherwise, the regulations for acquiring the jubilee indulgence promised by the Pope—pardon of temporal punishment for sin—are the same as those followed in Rome, with local variations.

World Division Urged on Basis Of Resources

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26 (Special).—A new division of the world based on distribution of mineral deposits was proposed today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science convention here.

Dr. Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard University, president-elect of the association, proposed abandonment of present geographic and political divisions of the world, into more enduring geologic divisions.

One major cause for world disunity today, Dr. Mather explained, is the exploitation by nations and groups of their mineral deposits.

"The nature and distribution of mineral resources provide abundant opportunity for the cultivation of wholesome relations among the various members of the human family," he declared, advocating a more equitable sharing of such resources.

Conferees Get Defense Bill

A joint Congressional conference committee will meet at 2 p. m. today to write the final provisions of the three-billion, 100-million-dollar national civil defense bill.

Both chambers have approved the major features of the measure but a number of minor differences must be settled by the conference group.

The House yesterday sent the bill to conference and named five of its members to serve as conferees. They are Representatives Carl T. Durham (D., N. C.), Paul J. Kilday (D., Tex.), Melvin Price (D., Ill.), W. Sterling Cole (R., N. Y.), and Charles H. Elston (R., Ohio).

The Senate members of the conference group are Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), Virgil Chapman (D., Ky.), and Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.).

New Blue Star Finding Told To Scientists

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

CLEVELAND, Dec. 26—Discovery of the first blue dwarf star was jointly reported here today by astronomers of New York, Michigan and Cleveland.

The heavenly finding is considered so important that already five observatories in the United States and one in Canada are cooperating in a joint study of the celestial mass.

Its discovery was made public here as United States scientists convened for the five-day 117th annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The strange star differs from others in that it is much smaller than other known blue stars—which are all classed as giant stars—and was found outside the Milky Way, the natural habitat of such "hot" stars.

Reported by Dr. MacRae

Its discovery, upon a photograph of the heavens made through a telescope at the Warner and Swasey Observatory of Case Institute of Technology, in East Cleveland, was reported by Dr. Donald A. MacRae of the Institute. Further studies were also reported by Dr. Robert Fleischer of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., and Edwin B. Weston of the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich.

The newly labeled star, they said, is in the Northern Cross constellation, some 20 degrees south of the Milky Way. It is so far and so faint it can be seen only with the aid of a powerful telescope.

Dr. MacRae described the "blue dwarf" star as one of the bluest in the entire heavens, and as hot but not as bright as the comparatively gigantic blue stars that abound in the Milky Way.

All Are Giant Stars

Up to now, he explained, all blue stars are labeled giant stars because they are about 20 times as big as the sun, and some 16,000 times as bright. The "blue dwarf" is rated as only 100 times as bright as the sun, and consequently much smaller.

A star's color, it was explained, is due to its surface temperature. Astronomers have long classified two previous types of dwarf stars, the red dwarfs and the white dwarfs. These two types are extremely small stars and much cooler in contrast to the "blue dwarf," they said.

The astronomers who have studied the new star estimate it to be about 16,000 light years away from earth, with one light year representing approximately six trillion miles.

Runaways Caught In Plane Takeoff; Boy, 14, Is 'Pilot'

CULVER CITY, Calif., Dec. 26 (AP).—Three runaway children were caught today as they allegedly tried to fly a private plane to Eureka, Calif., 700 miles north of here.

Airport attendants said they stopped the trio as the plane started to taxi down the field with 14-year-old Leonard Bryson at the controls. With him were Louella Britton, 13, and her brother, Lloyd, 12.

Police Lieut. C. R. Lugo reported young Bryson said he wanted to fly to Eureka to see his father, a civilian pilot who had taught the boy something about planes. The officer said the children left their Los Angeles homes Sunday and apparently had only bread to eat for Christmas.

Summoned to the police station, relatives of the youngsters gave them a sound, old-fashioned spanking. A juvenile hearing for the trio will be held Saturday.

Truman, Back From Holiday, Meets Aides

before a House-Senate conference.

Short described the dinner meeting as "rather informal," with an equally informal menu of steak, apple pie and coffee. He said Secretary Acheson did "considerable talking" and was "very much a participant."

Asked whether there were any conclusions, Short answered, "I have no comment on whether decisions were or were not reached."

Eisenhower Here Next Week

He did say that Bradley's review touched on the military picture elsewhere than in Korea—a remark which hinted there had been some mention of Communist troop dispositions in Europe as well as Asia. As for Europe, Short said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower would reach Washington early next week and would confer with the President before leaving for Europe as Supreme Commander of the combined North Atlantic forces.

Short's account of the meeting bore out his statement earlier yesterday in Kansas City that no new international developments had brought the President hurrying home. He said one purpose of the discussion was to bring the President up to date on events since he left Washington last Friday; another was to give him material for his state-of-the-Union message to the new Congress.

The President's flight from Kansas City took 2 hours and 38 minutes, a record for his trips to or from his Missouri home.

Truman Helps Marines To Get Back to Camp

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 26 (HTNS). President Truman left here at 1 p. m. (CST), today on his plane, the Independence, after cutting short his holiday by a day.

Before leaving he passed a morning which was in tone with his quiet, family-style Christmas with Mrs. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, at Independence. He arrived at the Muehlebach hotel here in mid-morning. Callers included Eddie Jacobson, his one-time partner in a haberdashery here; Brig. Gen. Ralph Truman, a cousin; J. Vivian Truman, his brother, and Albert Helix, an old friend who formerly was president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce.

At midday, the President was served a chili lunch prepared by Ernie Ahlfeldt, an old friend.

While at his home this morning, Mr. Truman received a message from Mrs. Edna P. Taylor, of Independence, asking for assistance in returning her son, Corpl. Harold D. Taylor, and nine other Marines to their station at Camp Pendleton, Calif., in accordance with sudden orders canceling their holiday leaves.

The Marines had originally been given until January 2, but were ordered by telegram to return December 28. They had airline reservations to return January 2.

Later it was announced that the matter was turned over to the Navy for "appropriate" action.

"I've lived here all my life, so I thought it was all right," Mrs. Taylor said. "I didn't want to be smart Alecky, but I thought the big thing was to get the boys back on time."

Caps Pull Out of Spin Against Olympians, 88-81

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

MY OPERATIVES in New Orleans report that at the current market two tickets to the Oklahoma-Kentucky Sugar Bowl football game can be swapped for one seat to the Sugar Bowl basketball tournament that is down for decision on Friday and Saturday nights.

Both events are sell-outs, but it is the rare situation when basketball ducats are in higher demand than seats to a Bowl football game. The reason would have to be a very special one, and it is. The occasion is the high prospect that basketball fans will see Kentucky and Bradley U. meet on the same court.

POVICH

The clamor for the basketball tickets is no reflection on the calibre of the Sugar Bowl's football game which presents in Oklahoma the undisputed No. One team of the Nation against a Kentucky eleven that could upset it. The Kentucky-Bradley basketball game simply offers the most ultra match that could be conjured and has a national interest that transcends any New Year's Day football game.

Only a most surprising upset will keep Bradley and Kentucky out of the tournament's climactic game on Saturday night. Kentucky must get past St. Louis U. on Friday night, and Bradley must sweep past Syracuse. They both are expected to win handily.

BRADLEY IS THE LITTLE school in Peoria, Ill., that begins to move among the giants when the football season ends and basketball starts. On the gridiron, the Bradley Braves are something less than high-powered, playing in a circle that includes such as Ripon, Adams State, Bowling Green, Wichita and Wayne. But with the start of basketball they move full into the national spotlight.

Last year little Bradley was the Nation's No. 1 basketball team two notches above Kentucky. Bradley finished second to CCNY in both the Madison Square Garden and National Collegiate year-end tournaments. In the current ranking which finds unbeaten Kentucky rated No. 1, unbeaten Bradley is ranked No. 2. Thus the high interest in the outcome of their probable meeting four nights hence.

Coach Adolph Rupp who complained that St. John's "slow-down" tactics made his Wildcats "look bad" even in victory, will have no such complaint against Bradley. Coach Forrest Anderson of Bradley is a disciple of the quick-break, and his lads will be willing to run with the Wildcats.

IN MONDAY'S SUGAR BOWL football game, Oklahoma is a mere seven-point favorite over Paul Bryant's once-beaten Kentucky team. The Sooners need victory in that one to solidify their claim to being the Nation's finest in college football, but they have no individual back to match the feats of Babe Parilli, Kentucky's passing ace.

The lone team that stopped Parilli and held Kentucky scoreless was Tennessee which got away with a 7-0 decision. Oklahoma all through the season has never been noted for the defensive sturdiness of Tennessee, and the Kentucky-Oklahoma game could burgeon into a scoring spree with the Wildcats' single-wing arrayed against the tricky Split-T formation of Coach Bud Wilkinson.

Wilkinson is being voted college football's Coach of the Year and there can be no quarrel with that decision. In the face of numerous losses of lettermen, Wilkinson was able to steer Oklahoma through another unbeaten season and run his streak of defeatless games to 31. Against Kentucky he's risking the best record any team is carrying into any bowl game throughout the Nation.

IT IS OKLAHOMA'S third straight appearance in the Sugar Bowl. Two years ago, the Sooners were supposed to get licked by North Carolina but wound up in front 14-7. Last year they romped to a 35-0 victory over LSU. On Monday, Wilkinson will be unveiling a new quarterback for the third year in a row in the difficult job of making his T-Attack move.

Little Jack Mitchell was the key man for Oklahoma in the 1948 season, and when he was graduated Wilkinson moaned that he might even have to abandon the split-T because of the lack of a replacement. But he solved his problem by promoting Darrell Royal, a halfback with Mitchell, to the quarterback spot and Royal was a complete success in the job.

This year, Wilkinson's quarterback is Claude Arnold, and that is no accident. After under-studying the accomplished Mitchell in 1948. Arnold wasn't even issued a uniform in 1949. Royal had moved into the quarterback job so smartly that Wilkinson was thus able to preserve one more year of eligibility for Arnold who at 26 is in his fifth year at the school.

Moseley New VPI Coach; Served Terps Under Bryant

BLACKBURG, Va., Dec. 26.—Frank O'Rear Moseley, Kentucky backfield coach and former assistant at Maryland, tonight was named director of athletics and head football coach at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Dr. Walter S. Newman, president of Virginia Tech, made the announcement when he received word from Moseley that he would arrive here "a day or two after Kentucky plays Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl" January 1.

"We are extremely fortunate in getting Mr. Moseley to become director of athletics and head football coach here," Dr. Newman said. "I am optimistic about our football outlook with such an experienced coach in charge."

Quit in Mid-Season

Tech's coach, Robert C. (Bob) McNeish, resigned in mid-season of the 1950 campaign. After his resignation, the team was coached by Allan Learned, freshman mentor, who agreed to "fill in" for the rest of the year.

VPI's team didn't win a game in 10 starts last season. It was badly beaten in every game, managed to lead an opponent only once.

Moseley was selected after consideration of several top-flight coaches.

Tech's new mentor also becomes director of athletics under a five-year contract. Salary terms were not disclosed.

Moseley will be given free range in the selection of his assistants, Dr. Newman said. At his own request, William L. (Monk) Younger, director of athletics for many years, will become business manager of the Athletics Association.

Younger will also continue as professor and head of the physical education department.

Three years ago when Tech hired McNeish as head coach, Younger urged that the new coach be appointed director of athletics and that he become business manager.

Moseley is a native of Mont-

Joe Culmone, Shoemaker Each Win Two

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP).—Jockeys Joe Culmone and Willie Shoemaker continued neck and neck today in their race for riding honors of 1950 as each booted home two winners.

Culmone now has 375 for the year and Shoemaker 373.

Culmone had two winners at Tropical Park—one on a disqualification—and Shoemaker rode two winners at Fair Grounds in New Orleans.

Culmone said today he may fly to Cuba to finish out the year Sunday but would not know until Friday. The status of his battle with Shoemaker at that time will determine his plans.

Shoemaker announced yesterday he will fly to Agua Caliente, Mexico, Sunday to end the year there.

Culmone kept his two-victory edge in the torrid duel by winning the seventh at Tropical aboard Mr. Ace. It paid $5.40.

Earlier, the saucy Sicilian got a break after he finished second by a head to Yoicks, a 14-to-1 shot. Culmone complained htat Yoicks' Jockey William Zakoor elbowed him through the stretch and the stewards allowed the protest. They put up the number of his mount, Miss Mellis, who paid $11.20.

Shoemaker, mighty little Texan, won aboard Applejack Jake ($8.80) in the fourth at Fair Grounds and on Fort Mifflin ($3.40) in the sixth.

Fred Scolari, Mikan Lead Washington's Late Drive

Special to The Washington Post

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 26—The Washington Caps stopped backsliding long enough to defeat the Indianapolis Olympians, 88-81, in a National Basketball Association game here tonight before 3500 fans.

Eleven-point underdogs, the Caps were led by Fred Scolari's 24 points and Ed Mikan's 15. It was only the fourth victory in the last 11 games for the Eastern Division cellar club.

Alex Groza, 6-foot, 7-inch former Kentucky center, whose older brother, Lou, won the professional football championship for Cleveland Sunday with a last minute field goal, tried vainly to pull this one out for the Olympians.

He hooked in 29 points. Ralph Beard, another former Kentuckian pitched in 21.

It was a close one all the way. In the first quarter, the floor play of Dick Schnittker and Frank Kudelka, and the shooting of Scolari gave the Caps a 23-22 edge.

Early in the second quarter, the rebound play of Groza turned the score in Indianapolis' favor, and at intermission, it was 43-42 Olympians.

Mikan scored eight of his points in the third quarter as the Caps pulled even at 66.

Indianapolis' shooting went sour in the fourth quarter, and the Caps kept up their pace to pull in front. Kudelka put in two layups to give Washington an 82-74 lead, and its possession game froze out the Olympians the rest of the way.

Boston Tops Syracuse, Ref Throws Out 11

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (AP). — The Boston Celtics gained their first National Basketball Association triumph over the Syracuse Nationals in two seasons by a 102-100 margin in a rugged game that included 11 ejections tonight before 5264 at the Boston Garden.

Boston's Bob Cousy and Paul Seymour of Syracuse, were waved off the court after some third period fisticuffing to launch the wholesale exodus. Before the high-scoring action ended, the Celtics also lost Chuck Cooper, Harry Boykoff, Ed Leede and Ed MacAuley and the visitors Adolph Schayes, Bill Gabor, George Ratkovicz, Alex Hannum and John Macknowski.

Baseball Gets 6 Million for Series Video dent of Gillette, and Frank White, president of Mutual, as well as Chandler.

The contract for the radio broadcast already covers both Mutual and Gillette.

Spang pointed out that Gillette has been sponsoring the games on both radio and television since 1946.

Chandler said negotiations for the new contract had been going on for several months.

Several club owners praised the deal but the transaction brought a sharp blast from Fred Saigh, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Saigh, who led the move not to renew Chandler's contract after 1951, termed the Chandler action "in poor taste."

"Television is in its infancy," Saigh said in St. Louis. "Television rights worth one million dollars today may be worth several million two or three years from now. Furthermore, signing such a contract so soon after his repudiation by the owners seems in poor taste."

Charles Comiskey, vice president of the Chicago White Sox, saw the deal strengthening the pension plan.

"The pension plan is a little unsteady at this time and with the money being assured now, it certainly looks a lot brighter. I think Commissioner Chandler did a pretty good job in working this deal out."

In New York, Horace Stoneham, head man of the New York Giants, also termed it a "good deal" and added:

"I imagine it was negotiated after a lot of negotiation and professional advice. I know the owners weren't consulted on it."

Del Webb, co-owner of the world champion New York Yankees, said at his home in Phoenix, Ariz., that he had been expecting the new television pact.

"Baseball has been working on this deal," Webb said. "I was looking for the announcement last week."

Ahearn Finds It Tough to Get Foe for Bassett

Goldie Ahearn, Boxing Commission's matchmaker for the Sonny Boy West benefit card January 4 at Uline Arena, is having a hard time pinning down an opponent for Percy Bassett in the feature.

Bassett, the world's fourth ranking lightweight, volunteered to fight in the benefit feature after his knockout of West in New York last week resulted in Sonny Boy's death.

Goldie reported that since Sunday, three fighters have accepted bids to meet Bassett, only to change their minds, claiming they couldn't get into condition

One of them was Henry Lesane, who split in two meetings with West here two years ago, and who last month knocked out Brooklyn's Charlie Titone, who has been a popular figure here. Ahearn wouldn't name the other two boxers who pulled out.

Goldie said that he was receiving a lot of encouragement and help from the International Boxing Commission, which released Bassett from a previous commitment to fight in Madison Square Garden on January 5.

Goldie added that it's practically a certainty that Gene Smith, a very promising local featherweight who has been idle for a couple of months, and Julian Keene, the D. C. lightweight champ, will be on the program.

W&L Loses Michaels for Gator Game

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 26 (AP).—Washington and Lee's Fullback Walt Michaels was lost today for the Gator Bowl tilt against Wyoming after an attack of appendicitis.

The "Big Train" of the Generals' Split-T movement had been ill for a week but refused medical attention for fear of being removed from the squad.

But over the weekend it became evident that Michaels couldn't go on and he was operated on Sunday.

He swore all to secrecy until he was able to telephone his parents in Swoyersville, Pa.

"I don't want to call them until Christmas night after they've had some fun," he said.

The 215-pounder made the team and its attendants promise no publicity on the operation until today.

Michaels scored 89 points during the season and gained 715 yards rushing for an average of 6 yards a try.

Two Washington and Lee ends have been injured since workouts here began. Jim Carpenter suffered a twisted leg in scrimmage today but he's expected to be ready to go in a couple of days.

Bob Goldsmith, who has a muscle separation in his right shoulder in Saturday's practice, probably won't get in the Gator Bowl clash.

District's Pete Cox Wins in Boys' Tennis

NE WYORK, Dec. 26—Pete Cox of Washington, D. C., advanced to the third round of the Boys Division of the Eastern Indoor Tennis Championship tournament being held at the Third Engineers Armory here.

Brown's Browns Put in 42-Hour Week With No Overtime—Title Is Reward

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

FOOTBALL WITH Paul Brown is not a game, it's a business. And with Paul Brown business is good.

It's so good, in fact, the guy has run out of championships to win. His Cleveland Browns bagged the title all four years of the All-America Conference's existence and in their first year in the National Football League, they took it all, too.

Paul Brown.

How does Paul Brown do it? Simple enough. He orders his team to score more points than the other team. That usually wins any game. Unfortunately, however, it's not quite as easy as that.

Brown combines a thorough knowledge of football with a little backwoods philosophy. That's the blend that's produced five championships for his Clevelanders.

"Precision Paul," as the alliterative set calls him, knows football, knows football players, knows how to get them and knows how to coach them after he's gotten them.

Brown's football players undoubtedly spend more hours at their jobs than any football players in the game.

They report to him at 10 a. m. each day and watch game movies until time for lunch. The players and coaches then all eat together and talk—more football.

Next, come another meeting until about 2 o'clock. This session is devoted to any personal problems the players may have, a question and answer period (about football, of course) and in general a gridiron bull session.

Now it's 3 o'clock and now it's time to get on the field and practice. This lasts until about five o'clock. That's a seven hour day, with an hour out for lunch, and that's what the Cleveland Browns do six days a week.

"To play for the Browns, you gotta love to play football and we do," commented Otto Graham. "You either do or learn to quickly because if you don't, you don't play for the Browns."

Brown doesn't think a 42-hour week is too long for his players. "They're paid well in the first place," he said. "Secondly, they wouldn't be in the game if they didn't like it and when you like your job the work seems like fun instead of work."

"Simon Legree" Brown, on the eve of a game, doesn't permit his players to spend the night at their home, even if the game is in Cleveland. They are put up at a hotel, along with the assistant coaches. And where's Brown? He's in the same hotel.

Brown explained his football philsophy to the Browns in 1946, when he first assembled them. He told them that if they'd keep a couple of steps ahead of the opposition at all times, never quit no matter how bad the going was, they'd do all right.

"And to keep ahead of the other team," he said "you must hustle every second."

And then he told them a story, a little yarn his uncle, a rural mail carrier from Sharon, Ohio, told him.

Seems the uncle delivered the mail on a bicycle. One day a bull started chasing the uncle. The harder the uncle peddled, the faster the bull ran. The uncle wasn't able to pull away from the bull, yet the bull wasn't able to catch the cannon-balling uncle either.

Finally, uncle's bike crashed into a concrete wall, spilling him over on the other side. The bull, running head down, crashed into the wall, too, and got his horns stuck.

A villager, watching the chase, came upon the uncle and said: "That bull almost caught you, fellow."

The uncle replied: "That bull almost catches me every day, but he never has because I manage to stay a couple of steps ahead of him."

Baltimore Halts Stadium Addition At U. S. Request

BALTIMORE, Dec. 26 (AP).—Baltimore called off today at the request of the Federal Government plans to build a second deck increasing the seating capacity of Memorial Stadium to 60,000 seats.

The National Production Authority asked the city to postpone completion of the stadium "until the situation is more favorable."

With the addition of temporary stands, the present stadium can seat 41,000 or more spectators.

The 1951 Navy-Notre Dame has been scheduled for Baltimore. At the time arrangements were made, however, it was believed that the new addition would be ready by next fall.

Capt. Howard T. Caldwell, Navy athletic director, said in Annapolis that the city's decision to put off construction "is not going to change the site of the Navy-Notre Dame game, so far as I can tell."

He said the game had been scheduled for Baltimore with the understanding that conditions might arise that would make it impossible to go through with new construction immediately.

Chaffee Dee Forgets to Bear Out, Wins at Charles Town

AT CHARLES TOWN

DEAR FOLKS:

While the national spotlight is on the jockey race between Culmone and Shoemaker, local interest centers in a battle between Vernon Bush and Darrell Hartley. Hartley led in to the Tuesday program 12 to 11. If he wins by one race, the Canada boy can consider himself very lucky. On the Monday card, Hartley won the second race by a hair margin over Bush who broke his whip in the stretch and was unable to sufficiently drive his mount. Frank Frisbie, who sent Gilded Fox out to win the other day, trained Effendi, the 1909 Preakness winner. While Wednesday's Sager Purse drew only seven starters, the field packs oodles of speed. Local riders are spending more time in the reducing box these days, taking off some of that Christmas dinner weight. See you on the rail.—BILL

Regalbuto Boots Home $9.80 Victor

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 26.—Chaffee Dee, owned by C. E. George of Washington, overcame a habit of running out at the final bend and ran away with the Annapolis Purse, featuring the Tuesday program here.

Out of the mare Highland Song, once a champion hereabouts, Chaffee Dee led R. M. Downes' San-Chu to the wire by three and one-half lengths. A neck farther back came L. T. Davis' Little Orchid to be third in a field of nine.

With Little Orchid installed as the favorite, Chaffee Dee paid a $9.80 win mutuel and was clocked in .47 for the four fu longs over a track labeled "good" after the area was visited by light snow.

Johnny Regalbuto had the mount on the winning son of Principal, nursed him around the turn into the stretch and carried him cleverly to the wire after being in front all the way. San-Chu closed gamely to take the place award from the tiring Little Orchid.

The feature victory was the second in a row for Regalbuto who won the fifth event with Mrs. C. O. Schweitzer's Florida Farmer, sending the colt through the stretch with zip that gave him the verdict in front of a photo that showed J. H. Hammond's Good Gossip second in front of Jose Gomez's Greelac. Florida Farmer, clocked in 1:27 for the about seven furlongs, paid $14.80.

Close finishes marked both ends of the daily double which paid $43.40 on the 6 and duo. J. K. Wynkoop's Gomel, a $3.80 favorite, took the first by a neck margin while handled by Willie Miller. J. Joseph's Courage Road, paying $13.60, nosed out the favored Valiant Dick in the second race. Apprentice C. Martinez rode this winner.

The day's two-year-old race went to a public choice, G. S. Moore's Doll Foot. The fleet daughter of Boss Hoss and Toy Foot hustled along in front under good handling by Vernon Bush and led Blumission and Nerve into the wire in the good time of 1:16 2/5 for the half mile. She paid $4.20.

Harris, Judge Will Speak to Boys Club Champs

Bucky Harris, Nats' manager, and Joe Judge, Georgetown coach, will be chief speakers when the Washington Boys Club, local junior baseball champion for four years, is honored at a banquet tomorrow night at the Touchdown Club.

Formerly the Marx Jewelers team, the Boys Club won the All-America Tournament championship in 1947, finished second twice and third last year. Other guests will be Irving Shoemaker of the D. C. Umpires Association, and Vic Gauzza, czar of area sandlot baseball.

Kentucky Is Still No. 1 to Coaches

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (U.P.).—Kentucky's undefeated Wildcats are dominating the collegiate basketball scene as no team ever has before.

For the third successive week they were rated the Nation's No. 1 quintet by the 35 outstanding basketball coaches who make up the United Press rating board. Thirty-two of the coaches selected Kentucky for the top spot and the other three picked them second. That gave the Wildcats a total of 347 out of a possible 350 points.

It was the best showing ever made by any team in the United Press ratings. Last week, Kentucky received 28 first place votes and a total of 330 points for the best previous showing. Points are awarded on the basis of 10 for a first place vote. Nine for a second and so on down to one for a tenth.

Kentucky has won all six games played this season, coming up with a 43 to 37 victory over St. John's last week.

Four other undefeated teams rounded out the top five—Bradley, Oklahoma A. & M., Long Island University and Indiana in that order.

The three coaches who placed Kentucky second gave their first place votes to Bradley, the Oklahoma Aggies and Long Island.

In holding second place for the third straight week, Bradley scored 275 points. Oklahoma A. & M., which like Bradley has won nine games this season without a defeat, received 218 points to jump from fourth to third place. North Carolina State, third last week, fell to sixth after being beaten by Villanovia.

Long Island, which jumped from seventh to fourth, has won five games without a defeat, while Indiana, holding fifth place for the second straight week, has won all of its six games.

How They Rank:

(First place votes in parenthesis):

Team	Pts.
1. Kentucky (32)	347
2. Bradley (1)	275
3. Oklahoma A. & M. (1)	218
4. Long Island (1)	189
5. Indiana	183
6. North Carolina State	178
7. Missouri	65
8. St. John's	61
9. City College of New York	55
10. Kansas	53

Second 10—Washington, 51; Villanova, 42; Brigham Young, 36; Wyoming, 32; Kansas State, 31; Duquesne, 22; Cincinnati, 20; Toledo, 17; St. Louis, 16; LaSalle (Philadelphia), 13.

Others—Iowa, 12; Oklahoma, 11; Columbia and Stanford, 9 each; Holy Cross, 8; Arizona, New York University and Western Kentucky, 7 each; Canisius, 5; California and Syracuse, 4 each; Illinois, Southern Methodist and West Virginia, 3 each; DePaul and Minnesota, 2 each; Denver, Navy, Notre Dame, Southern California and St. Bonaventure, 1 each.

Hunters, Too

Canvasbacks Frozen Out On Bay Flats

By Ralph Murdock

THE SUSQUEHANNA Flats the finest hunting grounds for ducks in this neck of the woods are frozen—ice now extends clear across to the cove. This means that 40,000 canvasbacks will have to look for a new home.

Murdock

Two of the disappointed hunters who made the journey to the flats last week were Rev. James E. Malloy, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, and Ed Frank of Silver Spring. The shooters took one quick look at the ice, piled back into their car and headed back to Washington. The "whitebacks" had moved out.

Up-to-the-minute reports indicate that a large portion of these ducks have settled on the Patuxent and Wicomico Rivers and the lower Potomac. Only a minor part of this migration is expected to hit the western shore of the Chesapeake Bay due to a lack of natural food in the latter area.

GOOD BLACKHEAD shooting still prevails in the upper bay. Norman McKay, Ernie Travis, and Doyle Kendall bagged 12 big bluebills between noon and 3 p. m.

The gunners were on the scene before sunrise but could not get to the blind until the afternoon. An extremely low tide fanned by a northwester kept the hunters on shore.

The trio did all right when they did unlimber their guns. Each got his limit.

THE FACT that there are more ducks in Maryland at the present time does not necessarily mean there has been an increase in numbers in the United States. It may mean only that recent storms and cold spells have driven the birds South early this year, whereas last winter (a mild one) many ducks stayed North throughout the entire season.

Albert F. Smith, Richard Stearns, Gus Berlitz and the writer hunted on the Patuxent River about 3 miles above Benedict on Saturday.

We saw large rafts of canvasbacks in flight early in the morning before shooting time. Our score for the day—one canvasback.

The sport in the afternoon was somewhat marred by four gunners in a blind below us who poured lead at ducks from 100 to 175 yards away. A volley of at least six shots was the usual reception accorded each flight of ducks that came by—one good reason why a web-foot is blind shy.

Louis Is 'Outstanding Boxer,' Lowest NBA Rating in 13 Years

By The Associated Press

The National Boxing Association yesterday gave former heavyweight Champion Joe Louis his lowest boxing ratng in 13 years of campaignng.

In issuing its fnal ratings for 1950, the NBA declared there are no logical contenders to the crown now worn by Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati.

In announcing the ratings, Fred J. Saddy, chairman of the Championship Committee, praised Charles as "a champion worthy of the title and ready at all times to meet all comers.

The NBA placed Louis alongside Lee Savold of New Jersey and labeled the two as "outstanding boxers."

It was the lowest rating for Louis since he won the crown in 1937 by knocking out James J. Braddock.

For honorable mention the NBA listed the heavyweights in this order: Rex Layne, Utah; Joe Walcott, New Jersey; Lee Oma, Michigan; Rocky Marciano, New York; Cesar Brion, Argentina; Roland La Starza, New York, Bob Baker, Pennsylvania, and Jack Gardner, England.

Saddy criticized several champions for failure to defend their titles.

He said he will recommend to the NBA executive committee that the titles of lightweight champion Ike Wiliams, Trenton, and light-heavyweight champion Joey Maxim, Cleveland, be vacated "unless they defend their championship by March 1, 1951."

LIGHTWEIGHT

MIDDLEWEIGHT

WELTERWEIGHT

LIGHTWEIGHT

FEATHERWEIGHT

Champion, Sandy Saddler, New York; logical contenders, Willie Pep, Connecticut, and Ray Famechon, France.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP).—Nikolai Lopatnikoff, 47-year-old Russian-born composer, of Pittsburgh, and Sara H. H. Holden of New York City, obtained a marriage license today. Lopatnikoff came to this country in 1939.

Only 13 Appear on Drunk Charges; Near Record Low

Municipal Court was almost hangover-free yesterday. There were only 13 persons present charged with drunkenness as the result of arrests on Christmas Day.

It is a near-record for sobriety, court officials said. Last December 26 there were 77 drunks in the lockup, and on the same day in 1948 the figure reached 102.

One old-timer at the court said that during a war-year, the figure dropped to eight for one day. It was a period when whisky—and less potable liquids, like bay rum—was scarce.

Assistant Probation Director Robert J. Conner couldn't explain the present paucity of drunks.

"I passed 8 or 10 of the habitual old-timers usually seen in drunk court, as I came to work this morning. They were stone-cold sober," he said puzzledly.

bond fees for many Washington gambling big shots.

Bondsmen are limited in writing bonds to $150,000 at any one time in District Court. This is thrice the amount of the bondsman's security—which is $50,000 in unencumbered real estate.

Applicants must agree that the amount of outstanding bonds remain a lien on the realty, which must not be sold or mortgaged.

If a bond is forfeited, the bondsman must go out of business until the forfeiture is paid.

Record of Crime Arrests

Also, bondsmen must undergo fingerprinting and must state on application forms whether they have ever been arrested for any crime. Under the present regulations, the bondsmen need only state whether they have been convicted of a crime of moral turpitude.

Bondsmen can no longer charge or receive more than $5 premium per $100 of the bond. The old rules had no such provision, but the 5 percent premium was the customary fee.

If they act as lawyers or represent the defendant they bond, bondsmen will be suspended. Nor can they ever recommend a lawyer, or solicit or receive bonds while "loitering" around a court, police station or prosecutor's office.

We think we ought to warn you—this is the last time we aim to advertise these prices.

So you'd better take a careful look at them—and what they'll buy.

They'll buy the thrill of swift, smooth, spirited travel—and trigger-quick power so mighty that few Buick owners have ever pressed it to the limit.

And when you check what you get for what you pay, you'll make this discovery.

On a pounds-per-dollar basis—which is the engineers' yardstick of bedrock value—no other cars of comparable dimensions can beat a Buick SPECIAL, SUPER or ROADMASTER.

Or to be more specific—Buick's straight-eight SPECIAL is priced like a six—and in the ROADMASTER "price class" you can pay 23% or more than you'll pay for these great automobiles.

But note this fact: Our supply of these bargains is limited—so you'd better come in now and see what we have on hand.

Some Permanent Jobs Made Available to New U. S., District Workers

The Civil Service Commission has issued orders to permit a limited number of new Federal and District employes to be eligible for permanent jobs. Appointees to these jobs will be given probational appointments that lead to permanent status:

Police and firemen in the District government, postmasters, rural carriers, hearing examiners, junior management assistants, junior scientists, and junior engineers.

In addition, the order gives all Federal agencies the discretion to give probational appointments to all eligibles who were regularly selected from Civil Service certificates issued prior to last December 1 even though the individuals involved don't actually report for duty a month or more hence.

Meantime, Civil Service is considering requests from a score of agencies to allow them to make additional permanent appointments to new employes. Civil Service has the authority to grant such requests when and where "unusual circumstances" are involved.

The Civil Service order also will change the status of upwards of 250,000 employes from various kinds of "temporaries" to "indefinite." The change-over is made retroactive to December 1. The order abolishes these appointments:

War service, emergency indefinite, temporary indefinite, substitute in the postal service, and the appointment of any person serving under a temporary appointment pending establishment of a register.

As of December 1 and until further notice, all new employes who either have been or will be appointed after that date, with the exceptions of appointees to the jobs named above, will be given indefinite appointments that don't lead to permanent Civil Service status.

Indefinite appointees must serve a year's trial period. Those employes whose appointments are being converted to indefinite may count service in their agencies immediately preceding conversion toward their trial periods.

Two other provisions of the commission's directive to Federal agencies: (1) Indefinite appointments shall be made from the commission's registers of eligibles unless there are insufficient available eligibles, and (2) the commission may restrict certification for indefinite appointments to eligibles (persons who pass Civil Service competitive tests) that are immediately available because of residence or other conditions.

In making lay-offs, indefinite veterans will have job preference over indefinite non-veterans. However, an indefinite veteran won't have appeal rights to Civil Service from demotion or suspension for more than 30 days, or dismissal for cause until he has completed the year's trial period.

The commission's directive supplements a recent order by the President that requires most appointments in the Federal service to be made on a temporary basis after December 1.

LONGER HOURS: The Tennessee Valley Authority has placed many of its design and engineering employes on a 6-day, 48-hour week to keep pace with its big construction program.

FCC: Paul A. Walker will continue as a member of the Federal Communications Commission. He'll be 70 next week, the compulsory retirement age. The President has signed an order exempting him from retirement in the "public interest."

PRICE: Lambert O'Malley, an attorney in Justice's Anti-Trust Division, will be appointed assistant to Mike Di Salle, director of Price Stabilization.

CIVIL SERVICE: Dr. Frederick M. Davenport, chairman of the Federal Personnel Council, has written the Civil Service Commission to thank its staff for its handling of recent regulations on the Whitten rider that requires most personnel actions in Government to be on a temporary basis. He explained that the commission's staff consulted and advised with the council and its members before the regulations were issued.

AWARD: Each Federal agency has been asked to recommend one or more of their employes for the William A. Jump Memorial Award for 1951. The coveted award is open to any young person in Government who has demonstrated unusual competence in public administration.

Arlington Boy Gives Torpedo Tips

Tommy Pearce of Arlington visited Rear Admiral A. G. Noble, chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ordnance, yesterday and gave him a few tips on how to design an "atomic torpedo."

Tommy is 10 years old. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pearce of 2409 S. Hayes st.

He is something of an authority on atomic torpedoes, having sketched and described his version of the weapon in a letter carefully addressed to the Secretary of the Navy.

Through proper channels, the letter and sketches were referred to Admiral Noble. The admiral promptly invited Tommy to visit him yesterday at the bureau, and

Adm. Noble Tommy

In his letter, the young ordnance expert—a fifth-grader at the Nellie Custis School in Arlington—wrote:

"I think that when you find a way of setting off a bomb by inducing electricity into it that you should make an atomic torpedo. You could use it in attacking enemy shore batteries. I hope you can use this plan."

He suggested in a postscript: "You could attack the Communist troops through Japan."

On the margin he penciled: "You could send a small convoy of ships or submarines from America or Japan and make an attack with the atomic torpedo."

Admiral Noble wrote the young designer that he found his idea "very interesting," and added: "I have sent your letter on to our engineers . . . in hopes that it will be of help to them."

Tommy's father, who works for the Office of the Housing Expediter, was both proud and somewhat amazed at his son's efforts.

"I don't know where he gets his mechanical aptitude," he said. "Certainly not from me."

Death Warrant Signed

Governor William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, announced in Annapolis yesterday that he had signed a death warrant for Edward L. Grear, 44, convicted of slaying John W. Arnold, Baltimore policeman.

Two D. C. Veterans Take Lives While Others Celebrate Yule

His Marriage Broken, Former Navy Man Dies In Taft Bridge Plunge

Robert K. Condit was a man with the weight of the world on his shoulders when he walked out of his parents' home the day before Christmas.

In a short year, his marriage went on the rocks; tropical skin ulcers which never healed helped snuff out a 10-year Navy career for the strapping 6-footer who now limped as he walked.

Since his discharge in June, the 34-year-old former chief aviation mechanic had lived with his parents, unable to find steady work.

Condit disappeared into a holiday throng too intent on shopping to notice a man with troubles.

About 10 a. m. yesterday, George Leslie Sampson, jr., 11, of 2116 Kalorama rd. nw., interrupted a game of cops and robbers in Rock Creek Park with a discovery.

Near the base of Taft bridge was a body, on the southern side of the creek. It was face down on the frozen ground, with several tree limbs across the legs.

Fell 100 Feet

Police said Robert K. Condit of 3518 Quesada st. nw., apparently had jumped more than 100 feet to his death sometime during Christmas night or early yesterday.

Park Police Sergt. Albert Krueger said the body struck a tree before coming to rest. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of death due to suicide.

Condit had found time to scribble two messages, one in pencil, the other in red ink, both addressed to his parents.

According to police, the notes in his pocket said he "made a mess" of his life and this was "the only way out." Both were almost unintelligible.

Condit had separated from his wife and 5-year-old child in January.

His father, Roy W. Condit, said that in June his son received a medical discharge from the Navy.

Ironically, his father added, the Navy veteran had been promised a job starting today as an automobile mechanic.

Won Citations

The Potomac River Naval Comman headquarters said Condit was awarded half-a-dozen medals and a unit commendation as a member of Fighting Squadron 17 for action in the Solomon Islands during World War II.

A native of Champaign, Ill., Condit came here 31 years ago and attended local schools. Besides his parents, he is survived by his wife, Mary D. Condit, and son, Robert Willoughby Condit, who, police said, live in Takoma Park, and a brother, James W., in Memphis, Tenn.

Retired Sergeant Hangs Self in Basement While Wife Waits Upstairs

There was no Christmas tree in the living room at 823 Yuma st. se. this year.

There was no wreath on the front door either, and the wife of Frank Kruchinski received no present from her husband. The 46-year-old retired Army first sergeant hadn't felt much like celebrating Christmas.

He and his wife, Lillian, stayed home all Christmas Day. She prepared a small turkey dinner and worried about her husband's nervousness.

Paced Around House

Kruchinski paced around the house, had a few drinks. He looked out the windows to the backyard where he had raised flowers and vegetables since he and his wife bought the home three years ago.

The day off from work and the inactivity didn't go well with Kruchinski, an apartment maintenance man who spent 20 years in the Army and fought through Africa and Europe in World War II.

A wiry, outdoor man who enjoyed hard manual labor like digging in the yard, Kruchinski was described by his neighbors as self-contained, quiet, almost brusque. He had no children.

Kruchinski became more nervous as the day passed. His wife of 12 years, who had noticed the nervousness ever since his Army retirement after World War II, asked him again to "go over to Walter Reed soon and have a checkup."

He shrugged off the suggestion.

Before she went to bed Mrs. Kruchinski decided to have a turkey sandwich, and called to her husband to join her. Kruchinski answered from the cellar of the house, saying he would fix something later.

Went to Investigate

After Mrs. Kruchinski ate the sandwich, she wondered what her husband was doing in the cellar at midnight. She went down.

Kruchinski was hanging from a rafter by a clothesline he had torn down and formed into a noose. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital. He left no note.

69,000 Out-of-Town Calls On Christmas Set Record

Washington set a record for long-distance phone calls Christmas Day—69,000 outgoing calls, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. reported yesterday.

Last year's Christmas Day traffic was 65,000 calls.

The telephone company said its long-distance lines were "fully manned" on Christmas. The traffic was so heavy, however, that delays of up to six hours were reported. Source of the delays was not available.

At the same time, final figures from Washington Postmaster Roy North show that Washington's mail this Christmas totaled more than 4 percent above the previous record in letters handled, and 4 percent above the previous record for letter volume. In both cases, the previous record year was 1949.

The figures:

Incoming mail and mail canceled here the first 24 days of December—122,051,532 against 117,105,460 in 1949, an increase of 4,945,072 more letters handled.

Mail revenue the first 24 days of December—$2,176,787.52 in 1950 against $2,099,255.83 in 1949, an increase of $77,531.69.

Central High Alumni Hold 42d Reunion Tonight

The Central High School Alumni Association tonight will hold its first reunion since the school was discontinued. The 42d annual get-together of graduates will be held from 7 to 10 p. m. at the Carlton Hotel.

In previous years Central held its reunion at the school, which was transferred last June to use of Cardoza High School.

Fifteen hundred active members of the alumni association have been sent special invitations to the event, open to all graduates of the school.

Seven alumni will receive certificates of distinction. They are James H. Lemon, president of the board of directors of Children's Hospital; James M. Mitchell, member of the United States Civil Service Commission; Judge Frank H. Meyers of Municipal Court; Miss Alma H. Preinkert, registrar of the University of Maryland; Rudolph E. Schoenfeld, former United States Minister to Rumania, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tompkins, president and vice president-treasurer of the Tompkins Construction Co.

Alexandria Ups Budget, Reduces Tax

City Council Decrees Basic Property Rate To Be Lower in 1951, Scraps Cigarette Levy

The Alexandria City Council last night adopted an all-time record budget for the city but still managed to include a provision for reducing the basic property tax rate in 1951.

The budget calls for expenditures of $4,831,322. It is based on a tax rate of $2.60 per 100-dollar valuation in comparison to the prevailing rate of $2.75.

The final budget total was $150,000 less than the figure originally proposed by City Manager W. Guy Ancell last month . The cut was due to the council's action in eliminating an emergency 2-cent-per pack cigarette tax which it voted to repeal last night.

The tax actually will not be repealed until January 26 due to a regulation requiring that a repealing ordinance become effective 30 days after council action. The ordinance contains a provision under which local merchants can redeem unused tax stamps at face value up to 15 days after the repeal becomes effective.

The new budget tops the 1950 budget—which set a previous record—by approximately $600,000.

The proposal to reduce the property tax rate went unopposed at last night's meeting although it had been attacked earlier by the League of Women Voters as an "unsound measure in these inflationary times." After the meeting, Ancell said the tax cut would save Alexandria property owners about $125,000 in the coming year.

The council voted to give the Alexandria Animal Welfare League supervision of the new city dog pound for a six-month probationary period starting January 1. Mayor Franklin P. Backus was authorized to appoint a committee to confer with officials of the league on procedures for operating the shelter.

Council also received official notification of the impending resignation of R. Powell Black, apprentice city manager since last February 1. Black, 29, has been appointed city manager of Jasper, Ala., and will assume his new post January 1.

C&P Refuses Again to Open Wage Talks

For the third time in recent weeks, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday refused to reopen wage discussions with two unions covering more than 6000 of its employes.

Local leaders of the Communications Workers of America (CIO) reported that company representatives suddenly cancelled plans to meet with the union today and discuss the possibility of wage raises.

"We were flatly told that the company is not prepared to give us any wage increase now," said Mrs. Eleanor Jane Parker, president of Division 50, which includes the telephone operators.

A company spokesman later told The Washington Post that C&P's refusal to discuss the issue at this time still left the door open for possible later discussions.

Mrs. Palmer said the operators here were angry because C&P of Baltimore had given some 3000 Maryland operators a $2 to $4 a week pay increase last week. At one large central here, Mrs. Palmer said, the girls were so provoked they wanted to start a wildcat strike on Christmas, but were talked out of it by the division's leaders.

Pike Consistory Elects Doehrer Master of Kadosh

The Albert Pike Consistory of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Valley of Washington elected officers for 1951 at a meeting last night in the Scottish Rite Temple, 2800 16th st. nw.

Doehrer

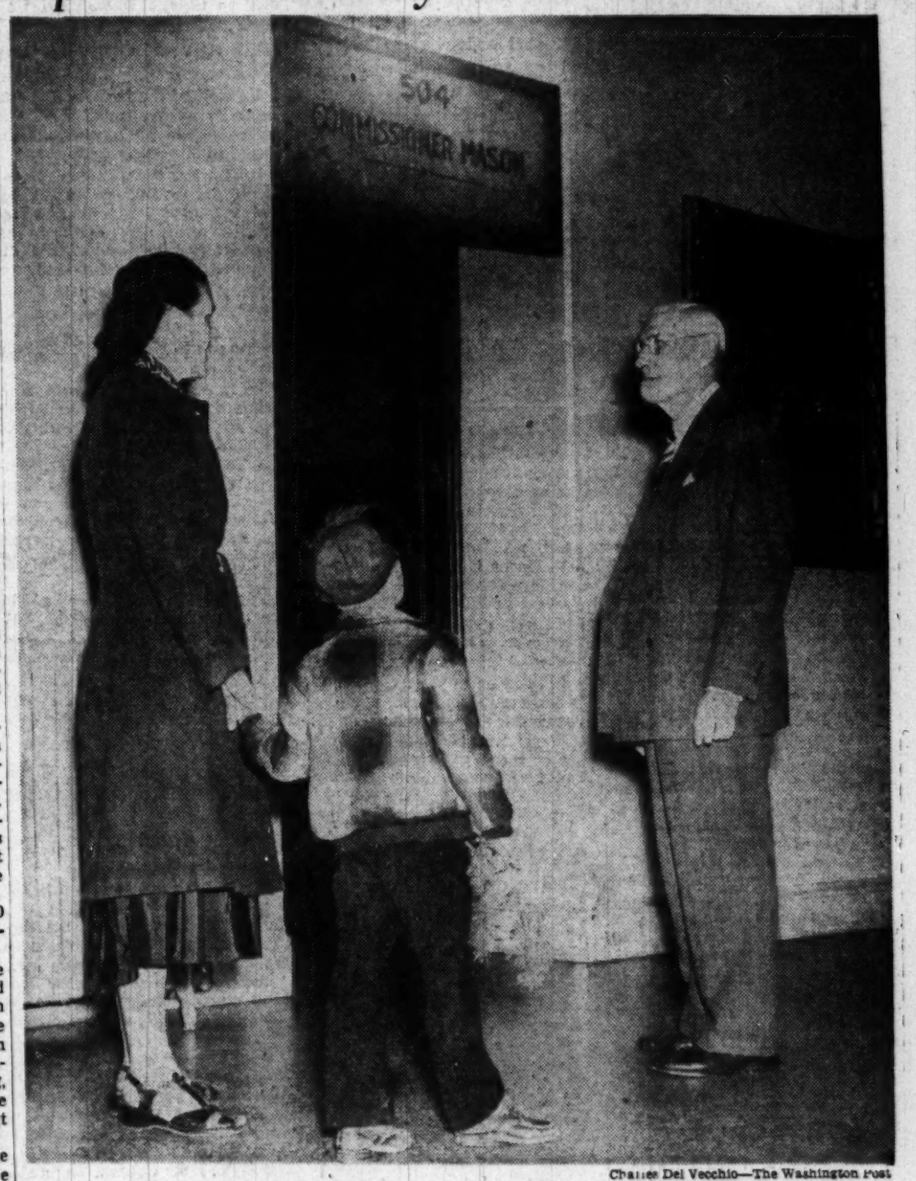
The officers elected are: Ben A. P. Doehrer, of 9619 Flower ave., Silver Spring, Venerable Master of Kadosh; Albert R. Merz, of 5116 Chevy Chase Parkway nw., prior; Evan Jones, of 2039 New Hampshire ave. nw., preceptor; Hilliard C. Myers, of 3645 Kanawha st. nw., chancellor; Milton I. Baldinger, of 2730 Wisconsin ave. nw., minister of state.

The reelected officers were: Austin J. Leister, of 2800 16th st. nw., recorder; Raymond N. Babcock, 4111 12th st. ne., treasurer; Myers was reelected treasurer.

School Council Post Goes to Dr. Lind

Dr. Melva Lind, former associate in higher education for national headquarters of the American Association of University Women here, has been named to the committee on foreign language teaching of the American Council on Education. Dr. Lind is professor of French and dean of women at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

Reprieve for Child Day-Care Centers?



Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

$50,000 REQUEST—District Commissioners sent a request to Congress for that amount on Friday to keep the child day-care centers going six months, after White House interest in the matter was indicated. Yesterday at the District Building, Mrs. Barbara Butner, 26, of 4558 Blue Plains dr. sw., and son John, 4, sought some information from Commissioner Guy Mason on what would happen about the centers, which were closed December 22 for lack of funds. Mason had nothing to tell Mrs. Butner, former Wac who is now studying duplicating machine work under the GI student bill

Montgomery Sidewalk Costs Pose Problem

Half May Be Borne By Property Owners Along State Roads

Property owners along State roads may be required to pay 50 percent of sidewalk construction costs in Montgomery County.

The subject was discussed yesterday by the Montgomery County Council at its meeting in Rockville. County Manager Irving G. McNayr told the council some policy should be developed at once so that work on Georgia ave. extension could be expedited.

McNayr said sidewalks along main roads might enable the county to save school bus transportation costs. Some children who now ride buses for short distances could walk to school if dangerous traffic conditions are eliminated through provision of sidewalks, he said. This would justify payment by the county of the cost of sidewalks on such roads.

Present policy is to require abutting property owners to pay the full cost of sidewalks, he said. The county merger will bring in definite recommendations at next Tuesday's meeting.

The council approved issuance of park bonds under the Capper-Cramton Act for extension of Sligo Creek and Rock Creek parks through their fourth units. These will cost $198,000, of which the Federal Government will contribute $66,000 and the county $132,000. The county share will be advanced by the Federal Government for 8 years without interest. After that, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission will issue bonds to pay the $132,000 to the Federal Government. The new bonds will be amortized through the 7-cent park tax.

$50,000 Asked For Day-Care Continuation

Fowler said. Welfare officials, who operate the program, said there would also be a problem of reassembling a staff to run the six centers.

First informal reaction on Capitol Hill was that the request has almost no chance of consideration by this Congress, but that the commissioners' action may have improved its chances in the new Congress.

The last minute move to continue the day-care program is fairly typical of its existence since World War II.

The centers were financed by the Federal Government during the war when women were needed for defense jobs. With the war's end Federal aid was withdrawn. Congress handed the job to the District which didn't want it.

Each year there has been a move in Congress to (1) abolish the centers; (2) establish the program on a permanent basis. Until this year the compromise solution had been to continue them for one year.

For Three Years

This year, after the centers had run out of money, Congress extended the program for three years. Then it appropriated enough money for only six months—through December 31.

The mothers' group didn't get a chance to tell its story, to the commissioners yesterday. Fowler beat them to the punch by saying the commissioners had done all they could.

But they told stories like this to reporters:

"I'm going to have to give up my job because there's no place I can leave my little boy while I work."

"I can't afford to pay a foster home $10 a week. The day care center cost less than half that."

"When school starts again, I guess he (a second grader) will just have to go it on his own."

Parents Urge A-Bomb Drills In Schools

'Calm and Ordered' Instruction, Training Asked in Prince Georges

The Prince Georges County Congress of Parents and Teachers urged yesterday that school children be trained in how to protect themselves from atomic bomb effects.

P-TA groups made the recommendation in a letter read at the regular meeting of the county commissioners.

The letter, signed by Joseph Brandt, legislation committee chairman, was referred to the school board.

The parents group urged "adequate drills in schools so that maximum protection can be afforded our children in the event of an atomic bomb attack."

Chances for the children's survival would be "greatly lessened" unless they know how to protect themselves and are trained in this knowledge, the group contended.

The letter also asked that "high priority" be given to school construction to prevent a classroom shortage like that of World War II.

The commissioners were reminded that the county has not yet provided classroom space for all pupils on a full-time basis.

In another letter yesterday, the Maryland Federation of Young Republicans of Prince Georges County asked that the Federal Bureau of Investigation be asked to assist in securing a police chief to succeed Ralph W. Brown, ousted December 5 by the new board. The group also recommended that the chief's $4500 to $5000 salary range be increased.

Film Showing Today

John deVere Loder, Lord Wakehurst, will show motion pictures filmed in Britain at a meeting of the Washington chapter, English Speaking Union, at 5 p. m. today in the parish hall of St. John's Church, 821 16th st. nw.

Leading Literary Figures Set for Post Author Lunch

The second Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon of the 1950-1951 season will be at 1 p. m. January 9 in the Statler Hotel.

Speakers will be Cornelia Otis Skinner, Paul Gallico, Countess R. G. Waldeck and Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger.

Tickets—at $3 each—may be purchased from these book shops: William Ballantyne & Sons, Brentano's F st. store, the Community Book Shop, the Paul Pearlman shop, Kann's book department, the Francis Scott Key store, Pursell's, the Woodward & Lothrop book department, Savile's, Sidney Kramer's, the Airport Book Shop, the Center Book Shop in Bethesda, and at the Better Mouse Trap and Chequire House in Alexandria.

Miss Skinner, author and monologuist, has written a number of popular books. One of the most popular, coauthored with Emily Kimbrough, was "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay." Miss Skinner's latest is "Nuts in May."

Widely known both as a novelist and magazine writer, Paul Gallico began his career as a sports writer. As sports editor of the New York Daily News he organized the New York Golden Gloves boxing tournament, the Water Circus and the Roller Derby. Gallico's latest book is "The Abandoned."

Organizer of the Eighth Army under General MacArthur in World War II, Eichelberger has had a distinguished military career, ranging from superintendency of the United States Military Academy at West Point to jungle warfare. His odyssey as a general is recounted in his outstanding book, "Our Jungle Road to Tokyo."

A fresh, unconventional report on postwar Europe is contained in Countess R. G. Waldeck's "Europe Between the Acts." A Ph.D. summa cum laude from the University of Heidelberg, she has been a journalist at Geneva and has traveled extensively in Russia and the Far East.

Man Repents, Offers Some Apologies

By John Crosby

THIS IS THE TIME for repentance. I repent. I apologize to N. B. C.'s "Camel Caravan" for saying that it didn't say, on the day of the assassination attempt, that President Truman watched the affray from his bedroom window in Blair House. "Camel Caravan" did report that. My apologies also to Gene Buck for saying that Alexander Gray wrote the radio song in the Ziegfeld Follies of 1922. Gray sang it. Buck wrote the lyrics.

CROSBY

One other error which wasn't mine. A column about Ilona Massey was titled "A Beautiful Blonde Spy and a Trend." A troll in the New York Herald Tribune composing room somehow changed that last word to "Tramp." If we ever catch that troll, we'll send him to Miss Massey, a lovely girl, in irons.

The above were errors of fact. The errors of judgment are much worse. In retrospect, a dim land I live in habitually, I feel that I was a little harsh on Milton Berle. Berle is still turning out an amazingly good hour once a week. He has persistently groped for higher ground in his sketches and has succeeded—a tremendous thing—in subordinating himself to other entertainers.

I APOLOGIZE, too, to the makeup men on the Colgate Comedy Hour whom I accused of making a juvenile out of Fred Allen with their pancake makeup. The fact is that Allen—since he quit radio—just looks 30 years younger. One more year away from radio and Allen will be playing Baby Snooks. This is the most spectacular advance in medicince of this year.

Allen used to get $20,000 a week. All we have to do is avoid making $20,000 a week and we'll all feel younger than springtime and live forever. Twenty G's a week is just a bad habit, like smoking, and all of us can break it if we just use a little will power.

Samon Raphaelson complains that the lines I quoted from "Accent On Youth" were outrageously out of context and gave a false impression of the spirit of the play. On reflection, I'm afraid this is true. It's very difficult to review a 10-minute adaptation of one scene from a play with any degree of comprehensive. At any rate, an injustice was done to Raphaelson. The fault lies with ANTA for uprooting the scene in the first place.

THINKING THINGS OVER in the light of daylight, I feel, too, that my opinions of the television debuts of Burns & Allen and Edgar Bergen were unjustifiably severe. I just expected more from these people in view of their radio reputations. Eddie Cantor was also treated roughly on his opening. Since that time, he has demonstrated that he is a very competent entertainer and that he is not, as I implied, resting entirely on his 40-year reputation.

I apologize, too, to Jack Carson and Jerry Lester, not for having said anything unkind about them but for not having said anything at all about them. The pressure of other affairs somehow shunted them off the main track. They both deserve mention.

There are a few things I'll stick by. The most violently unfavorable reviews of the year were about "Truth or Consequences," the television version of it, and "Okay, Mother," a daytime television show. I won't take back a word in either case. The most favorable notice went to Jimmy Durante, and I won't take back any of that either.

Ex-Follies Showgirl Is Found Strangled

YVONNE HUGHES
... reported strangled in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (NYHT).—Evelyn Hughes, Ziegfeld Follies showgirl of the late 1920s, who danced with Rudolph Valentino in the silent movies, was found dead at 11 a. m. today in the Ashland Hotel. Police said she had been strangled.

A handkerchief was around her neck, and a scarf of light material had been stuffed into her mouth. Empty beer cans were strewn about the room.

John McDonald, 58, a taxi driver, identified Miss Hughes. He told police she had lived with him as his common-law wife for fourteen years. They had lived for the past year in a room the length of the hall from the room where the body was found by a maid.

The suite in which her body was found was rented December 24 to a man who registered as Birger Nordkrist, police said. They said an Ashland Hotel clerk reported seeing Nordkrist leave the hotel

Early tonight, Nordkrist was taken into custody at Utica, N. Y., after he had called the Ashland Hotel from the Utica railroad station and asked "what happened in the hotel last night?" New York police said Nordkrist had been drinking when he was picked up, and quoted him as recalling that he had "a fight with a woman."

According to police, McDonald had picked up Nordkrist December 24 in his taxi, and had taken him to the Ashland Hotel.

Miss Hughes was in several Follies productions, and went to Paris as a bill headliner when Florenz Ziegfeld went there to open the Moulin Rouge.

She danced the tango with Valentino in the "Sainted Devil," and in another movie, and appeared with Gloria Swanson.

In 1928, she married the late Gordon Godowsky, son of Leopold Godowsky, pianist and composer. She left Godowsky in 1930, and he committed suicide December 27, 1932.

C. E. Wires Mark 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wire

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edwin Wire, of 308 Madison st. nw., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last night with a reception at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Edwin Wire, 3 W. Bradley la.

The elder Mr. and Mrs. Wire, both natives of Loudoun County, Va., were married in Poolesville, Md., in 1900, and came to Washington four years later. They have lived here ever since.

It was about 1904 that Wire established his real estate and building business. For the last 10 years, however, the company has specialized in church construction. Members of the family estimated last night that the company has built more than 3000 homes in Washington.

Wire is 74 and still active. His wife is 72.

They have four sons, Raymond, Preston E., Marvin M., and Charles Phillip Wire, all of Washington and vicinity; a daughter, Mrs. Leo J. Walper, of Pinehurst, N. C.; two grandsons and six granddaughters, and three great-grandsons and two great-granddaughters.

Marine Is Accused Of Setting Bed Afire

Marine Pvt. Horace Griffith, 28, was charged yesterday with setting fire to his bed at his residence, 1520 C st. se.

He was arrested at 5:30 a. m., as he was about to leave Greyhound Terminal for Quantico, where he is stationed. Police said that kerosine was poured on his bed and set aflame. Firemen doused the fire at 4:20 a. m., and after questioning his wife, Irethia, police arrested Griffith.

Bond was set at $1000.

Falls Church Rejects Plans For Auto Tax

The Falls Church City Council last night turned thumbs-down on a proposed automobile license tax.

Sugusted two weeks ago by City Manager W. R. Woodbury to meet the cost of road repairs and an expected loss of revenue in 1951, the tax was tossed aside when the council members unanimously agreed not to vote on it.

Last night the council also appointed Architect Herman Fink to membership on the planning commission and reappointed the four other members. In addition, Councilwoman Mrs. Jennes W. Myer was appointed to represent the council and City Manager Woodbury was appointed to represent the administrative officers.

Bud Trapp was appointed to the Board of Zoning Appeals and J. Anton Conner was appointed alternate. Four other members were reppointed. Mark Regan was made liaison official between the board and the commission.

The council voted to extend parking meters on both sides of West Broad st. to Little Falls st. —about two blocks; and to extend those on both sides of East Broad to Lawton st.—about ½ block.

Extensions on the city's water system to service residents in the high level areas were also approved. The cost will be roughly $130,000.

In other actions the council formally announced that the director of public utilities would act as city manager in the latter's absence.

Sedan Plunges Through Store Window . . .

CANNED GOODS—This sedan created a problem for the attendants at the Giant Food Store, 49th st. and Annapolis rd., Bladensburg, Md., yesterday afternoon when it plunged through the store window. Joseph S. Tompkins, jr., 19, of 36 F Crescent rd., Greenbelt, Md., told police he turned on the motor of the parked car to listen to the radio while his father shopped and the vehicle leaped forward. A shopper, Mrs. Robert Engler, 28, of 2814 74th ave., Kent Village, Md., was bruised when struck by the car.

Mrs. Agnew, Arlington Board Clerk, Dies as Result of Crash

Mrs. Elizabeth Agnew, 52, clerk of the Arlington County Board, who was critically injured in an auto accident Sunday, died at 12:05 a.m. today at Emergency Hospital.

Mrs. Agnew lived at 3115 Columbia Pike, Arlington. She suffered multiple fractures and a head injury in a four-car collision near Roaches Run, on the Mt. Vernon blvd.

Five other persons were injured in the crash that occurred, police said, when a car driven by James R. Greene went out of control and smashed head-on into an auto driven by Charles D. Elgin, 45, of 1720 N. 17th st., Arlington, with whom Mrs. Agnew was riding.

A Greenbelt man was charged with hit-run driving yesterday after his automobile was stopped by a taxicab driver who told police he had followed him three miles from an accident in East Riverdale.

The motorist, Francis J. Tierman, 24, of 15-N. Laurel Hill rd., was charged by Prince Georges County police after George Sartain, 21, of 3702 35th st., Mount Rainier, was seriously injured while walking on Edmonston rd. near Jefferson st.

Sartain was taken to Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale by the Brentwood Rescue Squad. He suffered concussion and leg cuts.

Police were summoned after Tierman's auto was forced to stop by Lester E. Ingram of 1625 E st. ne., a Veterans' Cab Association driver.

Police last night were on the lookout for a hit-and-run driver who dove his 73-year-old victim about five blocks, dropped her off, and left her a name and address in Lansing, Mich.

The victim was Lena Plant, 73, of 20 Third st. se., who was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a fractured left wrist and bruised left side.

Mrs. Plant told police the auto turned out of Third st. and struck her as she was crossing E. Capitol st. at about 7:20 p. m.

The driver took her to Union Station, told her to find a policeman, gave her a slip of paper with the Lansing address and drove off, she said.

Juvenile Bureau Gets Truitt Traffic Case

A copy of the investigation report of a two-car collision involving Alben B. Truitt, 17-year-old grandson of Vice President Alben W. Barkley, has been turned over to Lieut. John Ryan, head of the Juvenile Bureau, it was learned yesterday.

Lieut. Ryan said the case would be handled like any other but did not give any details. Proceedings of Juvenile Court are not made public.

The accident occurred Monday when Truitt, who was driving his mother's auto, collided with an auto driven by Miss Kathleen R. McCarthy, 28, of 3520 34th sts. nw.

Miss McCarthy was treated for head injuries and her passenger, Mary Kirkpatrick, 12, was treated for a hip injury.

Rep. Bailey's Son Injured in Accident

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 26 (AP).—Jared Bailey, 22, son of Representative Cleveland M. Bailey (D., W.Va.) was injured critically in an automobile accident today.

Raid Drills May Be Taught In Arlington

An Arlington County assistant superintendent of schools last night outlined to the County School Board a civil defense program for schools that will include student air raid drills.

C. Glen Hass, assistant superintendent in charge of instruction, said he plans to instruct the teachers on how to conduct the drills. Hass heads the County School system's civil defense program.

School advisory committees will work with the principal of each school to select a spot in the school building that will be least vulnerable in case of atomic attack.

Hass said essential materials—food, water, first aid kits, flashlights, portable radios—will have to be provided for each school. Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, school board chairman, said individuals and parent-teacher associations may be called on to provide such stores.

The school board decided to purchase 1000 copies of a government pamphlet, "Survival Under Atomic Attack." These will cost $75 and will be distributed to teachers and custodial personnel.

The school board viewed and voted to purchase for $200 a copy of a commercially-produced color film, "Pattern For Survival," which has to do with the elements of nuclear physics, the dangers of atomic blasts and methods of protection.

The film will be used in the school system but will be made available to civic groups.

More Debs, More Parties Brighten Yule Scene

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

CHRISTMAS WEEK is as bright as the tinsel on the Christmas tree for the debutantes who continue to make their bows to society at a round of holiday parties.

Last night at a dance for 400 young people at the Sulgrave Club, Miss Virginia Wetherill was introduced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Price Wetherill 3d. Before the ball the debutante was honor guest at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. William Bradley Willard, who entertained 30 of this season's debs and their beaux at the Metropolitan Club.

Hundreds of white flowers and Christmas greens filled the club's ballroom and drawing room suite. Sidney was there with his orchestra to play and after a midnight supper there was dancing until 3:30 a. m.

VIRGINIA WETHERILL, who's tall and fair, wore traditional debutante white, a net gown with strapless bodice and tucked diagonally to the knees where it fell into a full deep flounce. The dusty pink satin sash matched the pink carnation in her pink and white old-fashioned bouquet. Mrs. Wetherill wore a blue-violet satin gown made on princess lines with a dropped-shoulder decolletage, and a brace of white orchids pinned to her bodice.

Here for the dance were Miss Anna Bockius and her brother, Robert W. Bockius, jr., of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. W. Chattin Wetherill of Philadelphia, and Miss Letitia Wetherill.

Maj. and Mrs. David S. Barry entertained at dinner before the dance for Miss Eleanor Tydings, debutante daughter of Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings.

ONE OF THE season's prettiest, Miss Elizabeth Lydstone (Betsy) MacCubbin, bowed yesterday at a tea dance at the Washington Club. The debutante was presented by her parents, Maj. Herschel Hobart MacCubbin, USMCR, and Mrs. MacCubbin between the hours of 5 and 8 p. m.

In the drawing room, where guests were received, the crystal chandeliers had an extra gleam and the white paneled walls were strung with garlands of holly. Rich red draperies were drawn across the long windows, and a lighted tree stood in the hallway. Strains from Jack Morton's orchestra came from the ballroom, where dancing was held.

Miss MacCubbin wore a creamy white gown, fashioned with bouffant skirt and studded with rhinestones and tear-drop pearls. She carried an old fashioned bouquet of yellow roses. Her mother was gowned in toast crepe, pinned at the shoulders with a corsage of talisman roses.

The debutante's assistants were the Misses Caro Butler, Mary Ann Robb, Louise Sullivan, Catherine Sullivan, Constance Cathcart, Judith Loucheim and Sybil Devereux. Serving on the floor committee were W. Scott Watson, chairman; Midshipman William Cole, William Earnest, Robert Crichlow, James A. Watson, John Brawner and James Rill.

MISS Fanny MacCubbin, aunt of the debutante, assisted in receiving. Those who took turns presiding at the tea table were Mrs. William Gouverneur Barnewall, Mrs. Raymond Stanton Patton, Mrs. Leighton H. Peebles, Mrs. George A. Newgarden, Mrs. Austin A. La Mar, Mrs. James Nolan, Mrs. Ralph H. Hallett and Mrs. W. S. Watson.

The debutante was graduated from Hannah Moore Academy, the Episcopal School for Girls at Reistertown, Md., and last June she was graduated from Mount Vernon Seminary. Now she plans to attend George Washington University. Betsy MacCubbin was presented this year at the Debutante Cotillion and Thanksgiving Ball, as well as at the Junior Assembly.

DR. AND MRS. John H. Lyons gave a tea party at the Carlton Hotel yesterday to introduce their daughter, Miss Joan Lyons, to the younger group in Washington, as well as to some of their older friends. Guests were received from 5 to 7 p. m. in the Carlton Room, while Sidney's orchestra played for dancing.

The debutante, who is a student at the Convent of the Sacred Heart, wore a gown of light blue net sprinkled with tear-drop pearls, and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white roses. Mrs. Lyons was gowned in dark blue lace.

After the tea dance, impromptu supper parties were attended by the debutante and her friends before going to the Wetherill debut at the Sulgrave Club.

Tobe' Says

For years, the topcoat suit has been indispensable in the wardrobe of everyone who lives in the country, the suburbs or who does any sort of traveling. And as such, we've come to think of it as more or less classic.

This year, however, there is a brand new fashion in topcoat suits that makes them look very young and gay indeed. These are in pretty pastel color gabardines or lightweight monotone tweeds, with fleece topcoats dyed-to-match in the same delicious colors. Some of the coats are short, others three-quarter length, so it gives a smart new "topper" to wear over other costumes as well.

Husband and Wife, in Their Sixties, Meet for Dinner In Town and Wrangle Bitterly, as They Often Do; Man Reviews Incident From Start to Finish, Seeking Clues

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My wife and I aren't young. We are past 60, have grandchildren, and this isn't the first time we have had a rift or dispute. Clare isn't well by any means. She has been ailing for some time with a bad knee, diagnosed as arthritic; and from past experience I tend to attribute her temperamental upsets to her age or the state of her health. But it bothers me that her upsets are becoming more frequent, and about more and more trivial things—so trivial that a well-balanced person wouldn't give them a second thought.

The following is a typical incident, and I would appreciate your comment on it. A few days ago, before taking the morning train into the city where my business is located, I arranged with my wife to meet her for dinner that evening. When I reached the appointed place she was already in line waiting for a table, and immediately she questioned the time of my arrival, although it was exactly 5:45—the time I was to "try to make it." For such appointments I never say exactly what time I will arrive, due to uncertain bus and train connections.

After declining one table, as being too near the entrance, we finally were seated to our liking and immediately a waitress appeared to take our order. When I said we hadn't yet seen the menu she withdrew. She was gone quite a while and when she came back I said I would like some water. She acknowledged the request but continued to stand with pencil poised, whereupon I said I'd like the water now. At that my wife volunteered her order; so I named my selection too. Then the waitress promptly fetched the water, apparently realizing what she had started.

When the waitress had gone I told Clare decisively that she had far overreached herself, interfering with something that was none of her affair, when she took the ordering out of my hands. She resented my statement, picked up her bag and arose to leave. I arose too, blocked her path and told her to sit down, which she did; but she was very ugly about it and said it was her last time to eat out with me.

To explain my attitude about the glass of water—it is my rule when possible to have a glass of water just before eating, and coffee afterwards, as I don't take liquids with meals. My wife knows this and should have understood my insistence to the waitress. Having asked for water, I didn't want to order dinner simultaneously, because I felt the waitress might bring the water with the food in that case; and I wanted water a little ahead of the meal. I resent it any time water is served only when food is brought. I take the attitude that any properly trained waiter will see that water is on the table before taking the order. What is your constructive slant? E. G.

DEAR E. G.: Here is your story, cut to the bone, but still faithful to your own words. And reading it over, don't you see that you were being actively disagreeable during the incident described? If this is a typical sample of Mr. and Mrs. behavior in your marriage, it is hard to say who contributes more to friction, you or Clare.

All your fuss about the water was inappropriate to the situation. Theoretically, a first-class well-trained waiter might have satisfied your demand on the double-quick, if he hadn't already anticipated it. And theoretically a gracious and/or sophisticated lady would have routed her order through you. But if you insist upon judging human shortcomings by perfectionist standards, just remember to give yourself "F" for failure in deportment at this clambake.

A reasonably well-adjusted fellow isn't so rigidly ritualistic as you are, either about his eating or drinking, or about the behavior he requires of others. And he doesn't take an animal trainer's tone with his wife in public, even granted she is a thorn in his side, if he is habitually a good husband or perfect gentleman. So I think it advisable for you to try to recondition your attitudes for the better, before acting the righteous reformer in respect to Clare.

You and Clare are trading punches, as the usual thing, in a haplessly interwoven neurotic relationship, in which hostility and dependency are the principal dynamic sentiments. Each uses the other as a sounding board and whipping boy for his dissatisfactions with everything; and each feels frustrated and burdened by the other,—not recognizing that his own intrinsic limitations, or neurotic handicaps ingrained in childhood, constitute the "cross" he wars against.

Clare feels chronically choked up with exasperation; and your characteristic picayune obstinacy is a further irritant. She manages (or tries) to swallow her tension much of the time; but any slight special tax on her patience causes an emotional upset. She was trying to please you in coming to town for dinner, and was already worn with the effort when you appeared—hence the ugly wrangle that ensued. Her reference to the time, also the fact that she was already in line for a table, made you sore and you started fighting her fretful drive, by declining one table, holding up your order, carping for water, etc.,—as if to say, "Don't give me the rush act." This is my objective slant on the tiff; and I think if you can become more agreeable, you'll find Clare less acid too. M. H.

Experiment Grace

Beauty More Than Skin Deep, So Grace Follows Rigid Regime

By Anne Lawrence

ALTHOUGH GRACE is still practicing make-up techniques, and trying out new ways with accessories, she realizes that a good appearance isn't all surface show. So in addition to outside vanity and prettiness, Grace will go into a strict personal regime divided into a daily and once-a-week schedule.

DAILY:

1. She will use a deodorant every morning whether the weather is hot or cold. When she starts work she will keep an extra bottle in her desk in case, in spite of earlier precaution, she begins to perspire.

2. She will brush her hair morning and night and set it every night, the way she was taught.

3. When she gets her job, she will keep a make-up kit in her desk and everyday when she returns from lunch, she will thoroughly clean her face and make it up again. She will thoroughly clean her face at bedtime or before going out.

4. When she washes her hands during the day, she will rub in some scented hand lotion; at night she will scrub and oil her fingers to combat those open cracks.

ONCE A WEEK:

1. She will shampoo her hair and treat the ends to some cream oil.

2. She will give herself a complete face treatment including the relaxation period.

3. She will do her nails and massage her hands.

GENERAL

1. Her white blouses and gloves will be kept scrupulously clean.

2. She will look over her clothes regularly, catch up hems, seams, etc.

3. She will check on the condition of her girdles and launder them often.

4. When she feels flush, she will buy a fresh flower, pin it to her collar.

5. She will use a scent—a fresh fragrance that is outdoorsy enough to exactly suit her.

Grace knows now that beauty is as beauty does—and what's more she intends to keep on doing it. She has gained a confidence in herself over these two weeks that is heart-warming to us and thrilling to her. Now she feels equipped not only to go out and look for a job but to land one—and hold on to it.

Pesky Electrical Appliance Handles Will Behave With Synthetic Resin Adhesive

DEAR ANN:

We discard too many electric toasters because the handles, both wood and plastic, become charred and fall off. Is there a cement that will withstand the intense heat, that can be used to cement the handle back in place. Also I would like to paste a picture on a heavy paper lamp shade. What cement would be best for this purpose, something that also would not be affected by the heat? Mrs. H. D., Arlington, Va.

Synthetic resin adhesives that harden upon heating are used to fasten handles on electrical appliances, often in conjunction with screws. Such adhesives are seldom sold at retail, I understand, because they must be mixed with two component parts shortly before using and are not considered very practical for small-scale distribution. However, a company that sells $1 packages of such adhesives on order is the Armstrong Products Company, Argonne Road, Warsaw, Ind. These adhesives hold well at temperatures up to 150 degrees.

About the lampshade, you should find cellulose nitrate adhesive—marketed widely as a household cement—very good for applying the picture. This will withstand a certain amount of heat and so should be satisfactory on the shade.

DEAR ANNE:

I started to paint an old varnished table with white paint, but the old color seems to be seeping through my first coat of paint. What can I do to prevent this? L. L., Arlington.

Some old varnishes will bleed through fresh paint, although many others will give no trouble in this connection. If such bleeding occurs, you can seal the old surface by applying a coat of coarse aluminum powder mixed with shellac. When this is thoroughly dry, go ahead with your painting.

DEAR ANNE:

For the lady who recently inquired how to take the itch out of men's itchy winter woolen underwear: Tell her there is a well-advertised brand available in one of Washington's big department stores (don't remember which one, however!) that comes with a very thin cotton lining as an inner layer to protect the skin and add to wearing comfort. The outside is the regular type of woolen underwear. Mrs. J. P. P., Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

The embroidery guide, about which someone recently asked in your column, can be obtained by sending 50c to Diles Sales Co., Detroit Lakes, Minn. I bought the one I have at the big flower show here last spring. That is the address on the package. They will send it anywhere in the United States. Mrs. Charles Pierce, Hyattsville, Md.

Thanks also to Lois Smith of Riverdale, Md., who sent in the same information.

Cues for the Kitchen . . .

For a hearty luncheon salad, team cooked lima beans with crisp celery, cooked peas and carrots. Moisten with mayonnaise or other creamy salad dressing and serve on shredded lettuce. Preface the salad with a bowl of steaming soup and crisp crackers and you have a nutritious good-tasting meal.

A bowl of fresh fruit always makes an attractive and practical centerpiece. Choose red-skinned apples, russet or yellow-green pears, red or black grapes, oranges.

Have fun!

"First Choice One-Owner Car."

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Annual Winter Warning To Motorists

The Keystone Automobile Club has a timely reminder for motorists: Beware of carbon monoxide fumes.

This deadly killer is colorless and odorless. Its victims die without realizing what has happened to them.

A few simple precautions can prevent these needless deaths. Never warm up an auto motor in a closed garage. Never sit in your car with all the windows tightly shut, whether the car is moving or stationary.

Above all, at the first sign of drowsiness open the windows wide, and breath deeply. There's nothing wrong with you that a little cold fresh air won't cure.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Are taxis a luxury, or are they not?

Every morning, driving my hack, I hear people complain about cab service in the District. They argue that since they take a cab every morning, we're essential.

Well, I smoke a lot of cigarettes every day, and I like a highball before dinner, but I do not delude myself that these things are essential.

For travelers, strangers, the sick, and emergencies, a cab is a necessity. And it seems that these people realize our rates are low, and compensate us.

But the other day I picked up a lady at 4th st. and Michigan ave. ne. Many of her sisters have I met. Shortly after the trip became a group ride she started sounding off—cabs are essential for her, our rates are fixed by law, we took the job knowing this, she gets no tip in her pay envelope, and sees no reason why we should.

At 20th and Constitution I thankfully deposited an exasperating voice, took my 30 cents without a word, and carefully memorized an undistinguished face and a 150-pound body from 4th and Michigan.

Dear Mac:

The lady was no lady for doing all that popping off. But she was right on several points.

Right or wrong, the rates are fixed by law, and anybody who cannot afford to pay more, or does not wish to, is under no obligation. A hacker should not sneer at riders who do not tip; for all you know it's the guy's last 30 cents.

Most District Liners recognize that your rates are very low, and are willing to tip in exchange for courteous service, or even normal service. Your philosophical outlook is, I think, the best way to encourage tips from those who can give them, and at the same time get along peacefully with those who can't —or won't.

NEWS NOTES FROM 1600 PENNSYLVANIA AVE.

Just before President Truman left town to spend Christmas in Missouri, the White House considered a suggestion which might have made big headlines hereabouts.

A group of Home Rule advocates proposed that an "advisory plebiscite" be held to help Mr. Truman select a District Commissioner prior to February 2, when Guy Mason's term runs out.

Under the plan, residents would have been given three weeks to circulate "nominating" petitions. The various candidates would then have had three more weeks in which to conduct their campaigns.

An unofficial but city-wide vote was supposed to follow, with the President taking the results of the "election" into account in making his decision.

Proponents of the plan pointed out that there was ample precedent for it, since the Chief Executive often seeks the advice of individuals and groups before making appointments.

They also argued that the President could not be accused of handing over his power to appoint, inasmuch as he would not be bound by the outcome of the balloting. Yet District residents would get some measure of suffrage through having been "consulted" regarding the selection of Commissioners.

The President has stated several times that he is in favor of Home Rule, and I'm reliably informed that the White House found this novel idea quite intriguing.

But just before the President left town it was decided that "there isn't enough time available to try it now." However, the door was left open for bringing the suggestion up again "next time."

This, apparently, is a reference to the term of Commissioner John Russell Young, which does not expire until the summer of 1952. It occurs to me that Mr. Truman himself may be a candidate for public office at that time, but what effect that might have on his local decisions I leave to the political experts.

All I know is what I hear at the keyholes Winchell and Pearson have just left.

CBS Displays Color TV on 17-Inch Tube

NEW YORK, Dec. 26 (AP).—The Columbia Broadcasting System demonstrated today a television set that produced color pictures on a 17-inch rectangular direct view tube. CBS said it was the largest direct view color television picture ever shown.

The set employs a color drum in place of the whirling color disc used on CBS color sets up to now. The drum operates somewhat like the familiar ferris wheel at a carnival, with the viewing tube inside the drum.

As the drum rotates, alternate red, blue and green segments—like seats on a Ferris wheel—pass rapidly in front of the face or viewing screen of the picture tube. However, the drum is concealed from the viewer except for the segments flashing past the viewing screen so fast they produce the effect of a blended color image.

Previous sets for receiving CBS color have used a rotating color disc or wheel in front of the picture tube. The disc had to be slightly more than twice the diameter of the picture, which made the practical limit of color images 12½ inches across.

Dr. Peter Goldmark, developer of the CBS color system, said the drum provided a means of producing color pictures as large as 20 inches across. He added that when a tricolor tube is perfected, there would be no practical limit on the size of direct-view color pictures with the CBS system.

The Federal Communications Commission has issued an order approving the CBS color system for commercial operation, but the order has been suspended pending final determination of litigation brought by the Radio Corp. of America, developer of a rival color system, and other firms.

Staff Lack Stalled Price Curb

By Drew Pearson

President Truman was set to order a freeze on all prices as a part of his emergency proclamation, until he had a heart-to-heart talk with Economic Stabilization Director Alan Valentine and Price Administrator Mike Di Salle.

DiSalle

Mr. Truman called in the two men, outlined his plan and asked for comment. Valentine threw up his hands.

"Mr. President," he said. "I don't know how we could enforce the order. What kind of a staff do you have, Mike?"

"A secretary, a telephone and a legal adviser," replied the usually jovial ex-Mayor of Toledo.

"The problem is, Mr. President," added Valentine, "if we can't enforce the freeze, there will be such general disregard that price ceilings will be a joke. We cannot afford to let price stabilization be destroyed before it is strong enough to be effective."

The President then agreed to hold off the price freeze until at least a skeleton staff is organized.

NOTE—The inescapable fact is that the White House has had months to appoint a price administrator. Three months have passed since Congress gave the President power to control all but certain farm prices. (The farm lobby excluded some of these from the price-control legislation.) Furthermore, three expert former price administators are easily available in or near Washington—Leon Henderson, Paul Porter and retiring Gov. Chester Bowles of Connecticut. However, the President seems to have an inferiority complex about calling on men who served under Roosevelt.

Secret Aluminum Deal

A secret deal has been made between the United States and Canada to expand Canadian aluminum production at the expense of aluminum mills in the United States. However, the Aluminum Corporation of America which operates an affiliate in Canada indirectly will get a windfall.

The deal was arranged in private talks between Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer, production boss William Harrison and Canada's Minister of Trade C. D. Howe. By it, the United States agrees to furnish steel for building a giant aluminum works in the wilds of British Columbia. Though it will take three years to complete, eventually it will produce 500,000 tons of aluminum annually.

The deal follows urgings by ALCOA (Aluminum Company of America) that the Government buy more aluminum from Canada. This would throw the business to ALCOA's twin, ALCAN, and at the same time prevent building up ALCOA's competitors in this country.

ALCOA's first attempt to swing this deal failed last October, when Stuart Symington and Jess Larson stopped it. However, Sawyer and Harrison now have gone over their heads.

The new Canadian aluminum center will be located at Kitimat, a deserted Indian village in the heart of a virgin forest wilderness. This is only 1600 miles from Siberian air bases, as compared with proposed American plants on the Gulf Coast, 5000 miles from Siberia.

NOTE—This same Aluminum Corporation of Canada sold 200,000 pounds of precious aluminum to Communist China, 1 million pounds to Communist Poland and 3 million pounds to Communist Czechoslovakia — all after the Communist attack on South Korea. Some of this aluminum is now being used against United Nations troops in Korea.

War Censorship

Gen. MacArthur is leaving it up to his field commanders as to how far they should go in censoring war news. His secret instructions are: "Delay transmission of news and establish news blackout whenever in your judgment military necessity requires such action."

Inside fact is that MacArthur resisted censorship until premature dispatches leaked out about the evacuation of Hungnam.

Isolation Battle

A backstage move to dump independent Senator Wayne Morse of Oreg. and place Homer Capehart, ardent Indiana isolationist, on the Foreign Relations Committee, is being cooked up in Senate cloakrooms.

The diametrically opposing views of these two men were summed up at a recent closed-door Republican caucus.

"We ought to demand that the President not only fire Acheson," Capehart grumbled, "but replace him with a man who disagrees with everything the Secretary of State stands for."

In contrast, Morse cooked his goose with Republican diehards by arguing against the anti-Acheson resolutions.

Since then the move to substitute Capehart for Morse on the Foreign Relations Committee has intensified. It is spearheaded by the powerful Republican Committee on Committees, headed by Hugh Butler, even though Butler virtually promised Morse the Foreign Relations spot last summer. Capehart, however, is a member of the Committee on Committees, as are other members of the GOP isolationist wing.

When Morse caught wind of the switch, he wrote Butler: "I am aware of an attempt being made to keep me off the Foreign Relations Committee. I believe it will be healthy for the Republican conference to have a full discussion on this. I am perfectly willing to lay my record for supporting sound Republican principles alongside the record of any member of the Committee on Committees."

The outcome of this battle will indicate whether future Republican policy will drift isolationist.
